AVIATOR OF 22 BREAKS WORLD'S ALTITUDE RECORD

WRIST WAS BENUMBED

Stiffness at Great Height Kept Him From Going Even Higher.

LOST IN THE AIR

Flier Could See No Familiar Object When Up Nearly a Mile.

BY ANDREW DREW.

Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MOTOR SPEEDWAY, INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 14.—When a 22-year-old pupil of the Wrights soared 4384½ feet above the earth aviation week here started with promise of excelling any other aeroplane exhibition.

Walter A. Brookins, who set a new world's record for altitude, has been studying flight but two months, and his preceptors say he will be as well known as Paulhan or Hamilton before the year ends.

The aero men who are gathered here from all parts of the country believe the Wrights have realized that their prestige has suffered through the recent feats of Paulhan, Curtiss and Hamilton, and that they are determined to put their pupils through even more difficult maneuvers than those of yesterday.

Four of the six pupils of the Wrights made a dozen flights. Most of these were of short duration, but the pilots of the trimly built aeroplanes exhibited wonderful control over the machines in sudden dives and ascents, and turning amazingly sharp corners. And then without warning came the great flight of Brookins.

President Lambert of the Aero Club of St. Louis, in his official ospacity as vice-president of the Aero Club of America, has declared that Brookins reached an altitude of 4384½ feet, breaking the record of 4165 made by Paulhan at Los Angeles in January.

Brookins Trains Two Months.

The way in which Brookins became associated with the Wrights lends another element of the interest to his record-breaking flight.

It appears that during the first week of April Brookins, whose home is in Dayton, began visiting the Wright brothers daily at their shop there in the hopes of persuading them to give him a chance as one of their pupils. At that time the Wrights were receiving hundreds of letters a day from would-be aviators who wished to help them out, and were consequently irritated with Brookins' persistence.

"But he kept on hanging around," said Orville Wright this morning, "and so more to get rid of him than anything else we sent him down to our training camp at Montgomery. There he picked up the trick of flying more quickly than all the rest. The first day he went up he fought a 15-mile breeze like a veteran. He's an excellent mechanic and a natural born aeroplane driver."

The dizzy climb into the sky and equally dizzy descent by young Brookins came as a dramatic climax to an afternoon of wonderful flying. Brookins had been up several times earlier in the day. On one of these trips he had reached an altitude of 2083 feet and on all of them he had made himself the favorite with the spectators by the daring and skillful manner in which he handled his big white bird-like machine.

Wright Sends Brookins Up.

Shortly before 6 o'clock the Wright brothers decided to send Brookins up to break the altitude record he had made earlier in the afternoon. Wilbur Wright went over to Brookins and said:

"You can go up after your height record if you want to."

"Sure, I want to," answered the young aviator, walking toward his machine.

"And say, Brookins," said Wright, turning to look at him as he walked away, "you can go up as high as you want to."

Brookins smiled delightedly. So perfect is the obedience in the corps of the Wright pupils to their teachers that the ambitious young aviator would not have gone 100 feet above his record of 2083 feet if one of the Wrights had not given him permission.

When Brookins started on his long climb it was just a minute before 6 o'clock. At that time most of the spectators in the stands had left the grounds. But near the starting rail were gathered the officials, the other pupils, aero experts, the newspaper men and photographers, all greatly excited Only the two taciturn brothers, Wilbur and Orville Wright, were apparently unmoved. During the greater part of Brookins' flight they did not watch him.

Brookins climbed rapidly. On each circle of the field he went up 500 feet. As he rose the gatling gun volley of the engine died down until finally there was only a faint droning, like the distant hum of a sewing machine.

KANSAS CITY PUBLIC MEN FORM "LET-US-ALONE" CLUB; EXCLUSION IS THE OBJECT

Judge Phillips and Frank Hagerman Among Those Taking Railways' Slogan.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 14.—"Let-us-alone," which became the slogan of the railroads and special interests of the country during the Roosevelt administration, has been adopted as the name of an exclusive club just organized by Judges John F. Philips, John C. Pollock of the United States Circuit Court, Frank Hagerman and other Kansas Cityans. The articles of incorporation were filed with the Secretary of State today and a charter was issued.

This club is not to be of the common herd, but is to be exclusive and its membership will be limited to 20. A membership fee of $300 will be charged. A clubhouse, bordered with lakes, will be constructed in Bates County.

Judge Philips, who got the redoubtable Pat Murphy of the Sixteenth Missouri district and Senator Tillman of South Carolina after him when he went fishing down in Florida as the guest of several congenial railroad attorneys and officials, is president of the club. Frank Hagerman and Judge Pollock are vice-presidents and Conway F. Holmes is secretary and treasurer. The other incorporators are: J. A. Edson, J. P. Crowe and J. E. Grant, all of Kansas City.

The object of the club, as outlined in the articles of association, is "for the purpose of obtaining and enjoying a place of common and friendly intercourse and advancing by rational amusement and instruction in hunting, rowing, fishing, debating, reading, literature, history, magazines, current newspapers, pamphlets, etc."

The following have been placed on the unfair list: Prize fighting, saloon dances, dances at amusement parks, staying out late nights at "aimless recreation."

DOWIE DISCIPLE, BITTEN BY SNAKE, REJECTS AID AND DIES

Prominent Zion Leader Relies on Prayer and Expires in Great Agony.

CHICAGO, June 14.—Death, caused by a rattlesnake bite last night ended nearly a week of torture endured, through religious fanaticism by Oliver Pugh, 60 years old, of Zion City.

Pugh was bitten by the snake last Wednesday, but, true to the teachings of his creed, refused to take antidotes for the poison or medicine of any kind, relying on the prayers of his fellow religionists to cure him.

Pugh was bitten on the little finger while picking strawberries. He was a former alderman of Zion City, going to Zion in the days when John Alexander Dowie was its overseer.

Pugh is the most prominent Zionist to die in torture without medical attendance since Dowie's daughter succumbed some years ago to burns she suffered when an alcohol lamp used to heat an iron to curl her hair exploded.

BROWNE DEFENSE ASSAILS EVIDENCE OF LORIMER BRIBE

Past History of Representative White, the Accuser, Is Aired in Court.

NEW WITNESS IN CASE

Senator Isley Expected to Tell of Money Offers in Illinois House.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 14.—Cross examination of Representative Charles A. White, who accuses Represenative Lee O'Neil Browne of bribery to bring about the election of William Lorimer to the United States Senate, began at noon today. Attorney Forrest at once began interrogations concerning the witness' life before he was elected to the Legislature, apparently preparing the ground for adverse character testimony later.

Near the end of his direct testimony, when he was enumerating small debts which he had paid out of the alleged bribe money, White said he had spent $300 of the "Lorimer money" to visit his parents in Tennessee.

"Why do you call it 'Lorimer money?' Judge McSurely interposed.

"Why, I mean the money I got to vote for Lorimer."

State's Attorney Wayman asked White if he had any conversations with Browne on trips taken by the two across Lake Michigan.

"O, yes. Browne said people were bothering him because they expected Senator Lorimer to get jobs for them."

Chase by Police Recalled.

Continuing the cross-examination, Forrest attempted to show that while living with his parents at Knoxville, Tenn., White had ordered a suit of clothes from A. L. Stocker, a tailor, and that the latter had sworn out a warrant for White. White didn't remember whether his father had paid for the suit.

"Didn't you jump through a window to elude the officers?" Forrest pursued. to elude the officers?"

"No."

"When you were last in Knoxville, didn't an officer ask you if your name was White, and didn't you deny it?"

"No."

"And didn't you run from the officer then?"

White's answer to this was considered evasive by the lawyer for the defense, but White said there was a car approaching at the time, and whether he ran for it he could not recall. If he ran, it was for the car and not from the officer. White said he was earning about $68 a month in St. Louis, but when he went to Springfield as a lobbyist for the street-car men's union, he was paid $6 a day for every day of the session of the Legislature.

It developed earlier in the day that Senator Albert E. Isley of Newton, Ill., is to be a witness at the trial and this was made apparent when he appeared in court. It is expected that he will follow White on the stand. His presence caused a sensation and the defense will be called upon to combat a new force in the case.

When Lorimer was elected, Senator Isley made a sensational speech, denouncing in the House at Springfield the action of Democratic legislators in voting for Lorimer. His appearance at the Browne trial led to reports that he would reveal the names of several assemblymen with whom he conversed regarding the talk of bribe money which was going on at the time of the election. Many new names were expected to be disclosed by him.

Representative White, on direct examination by State's Attorney Wayman, went into details regarding the manner in which Browne is alleged to have bribed him. The prosecution, it is expected, will be through with White by noon adjournment. Then the witness will be cross-examined by the defense.

Objection to Witness Withheld.

When court convened Judge McSurely asked for authorities from the defense on which it insisted the testimony of Representatives M. S. Link and H. J. C. Beckemeyer was inadmissable. Attorney Forrest said he would like to reserve his argument until later, and the court acquiesced. Judge McSurely then called in the jury, and White took the stand.

Attorney Forrest asked for a delay, because, he said, developments between now and the time when these witnesses for the prosecution might take the stand, might lead to objections that he did not foresee.

Representative White was questioned as follows by State's Attorney Wayman:

"After the receipt of the letter from Browne July 15, did you meet him in Chicago?"

"Yes," answered White. "We went to Muskegon. On another time we went to St. Joe."

White said he and Browne made these trips to Michigan on Sunday and returned Monday.

"How did you spend the time in St. Joe?"

The defense objected to this question, but the Court allowed it to be answered.

"In cafes and similar places, and also in transacting business."

"When you saw Browne at the Southern Hotel in St. Louis did you have any conversation with him?"

"Yes. I asked him if he could let

DECLARES DEVIL IS A MYTH AND PASTOR SHOULD NOT BE NURSEGIRL TO CONGREGATION

Preacher who objects to running a "spiritual hospital" and some of the "mollycoddle duties" exacted of his profession and against which he protests.

BIG REGENHARDT SUCCEEDS MORSEY AS U. S. MARSHAL

President Names 350-Pounder From Cape Girardeau for Place in St. Louis.

Edward F. Regenhardt of Cape Girardeau, who weighs 350 pounds and who stopped a parade in front of his house so that President Taft might kiss his baby, named "Bill" Taft Regenhardt, has been appointed United States Marshal for the Eastern District of Missouri. He succeeds W. L. Morsey. The news came in a special dispatch to the Post-Dispatch from Washington, Tuesday.

The story is told that when the Taft fleet stopped at Cape Girardeau on its way to the Gulf last fall, Regenhardt, then a candidate for the position, was chairman of the Entertainment Committee at his home town. He had organized a parade, and led it past his home.

As the President arrived in front of the house Regenhardt gave the signal to stop, whereupon Mrs. Regenhardt, appeared on the front porch with three children. Regenhardt introduced the three boys successively as "Bill" McKinley Regenhardt, "Teddy" Roosevelt Regenhardt and "Bill" Taft Regenhardt.

The President, delighted, took his namesake, an infant, from his mother's arms and kissed him. Whereupon Regenhardt's candidacy experienced a boom.

The candidate's physique also pleased the President, who learning that he was an aspirant for the marshalship, remarked jovially:

"I think you are big enough for the job."

Morsey wired his congratulations to Regenhardt, who was in Washington when his appointment was announced Tuesday.

"During my two terms of office," said Morsey, "nothing has ever been said against my record, and I have handled some big cases. This makes me feel good. I am satisfied that the fact that I have served two full terms is the reason of my failing of reappointment."

The selection of Regenhardt, who is six feet four inches tall, is regarded as a victory for Gov. Hadley and his associates in the State Republican organization.

It is not known, however, whether Senator Warner, who had originally promised to support Morsey, went over to the Regenhardt candidacy.

President Matt Reynolds of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners, went to Washington a few days ago to urge Morsey's claims. About twelve members of the State Committee also favored Morsey, while the others indorsed Regenhardt.

Morsey has served two terms as United States Marshal for this district. His present term will expire July 1. The position pays $4500 a year. In addition there are five deputy marshals under him who receive a salary of $100 a month each and a chief clerkship which pays $1200.

Pastor Says He Should Be Called Only When Needed and Not Spend His Time on Purposeless Parish Visits.

Having denounced the devil as a myth and nature-fake, the Rev. Dr. McIlyar H. Lichliter, pastor of the Maple Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, is training his Rooseveltian censures upon ministerial mollycoddles and milksops.

At a meeting of Methodist ministers at the Union Methodist Church, Dr. Lichliter created a stir by attacking a venerable ideal of a clergyman—the one who calls assiduously upon the "sisters," sympathizes with them over the disappearance of the house cat or the "falling" of the bread, pats all the children on the head and says: "Well, how's my little man today" and inquiries anxiously about the health of Brother Jones when he has a headache.

"All this is not a man's job," said Dr. Lichliter. "A minister should be the leader of a militant organization, not the superintendent of a spiritual hospital. The church should be the pastor's force, not his field.

"The physician doesn't go around every day asking his patients to stick out their tongues. Whenever anything ails them they call him up and tell him so. Neither should preachers be required to visit the members of the flock frequently and look at their spiritual tongues. Whenever they really need his aid, they can tell him so.

Pastor Not a Nurse.

"A minister should be a man doing a man's work, and not a nurse ministering to ecclesiastical hypochondriacs. When men join the church they should be seeking an opportunity for service, instead of wishing to be coddled by the pastor. As it is, many of them want to be looked after, nursed along and inquired after.

"I am not trying to abolish pastoral calls, but instead of promiscuous calls, the steady round of purposeless and petty visits, the minister should call only where he is needed and perhaps only where he is needed most."

Dr Lichliter inveighed against the practice of expecting preachers to become "itinerant beggars," canvassing from house to house for church and charity funds. "Why hire a $75-a-week man to do the work of a $12-a-week woman clerk?" he demanded.

At this point the Rev. Dr. T. H. Haggerty arose to inquire whether Dr. Lichliter was trying to improve upon the Scriptures.

"I am not surprised at his views," exclaimed the Rev. William Schutz, pastor of the Elmbank Methodist church. "It is well known that Dr. Lichliter does not respect the personal devil of the Bible."

Preacher Must Have Wide Learning.

"The only personal devil I believe in," retorted Dr. Lichliter, "is the devil of unholy ambition. Too many ministers adopt a negative, conventional policy for the sake of place preferment. A man loses his faith through church politics. He forfeits the prophetic note in his struggle for advancement. He

CONFEREES AGREE COMPLETELY ON RAILROAD BILL

Report Immediately Is Presented to the Senate by Elkins.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The conferees of the Senate and House reached a complete agreement on the railroad bill at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon and Senator Elkins immediately presented the report to the Senate. He announced that he would call it up for action tomorrow.

Shortly after the Republican conferees assembled, Senator Newlands and Representative Adamson, the Democratic members, were called in.

The conferees have been at the White House daily since their appointment, and there has been every desire on their part to conform to the President's wishes in perfecting the bill.

There has been some friction over putting into the bill the paragraph authorizing the appointment of a commission by the President to take up the subject of stock watering by the railroads. The President has remained firm in his insistance that there should be some provision looking to the control of future issues of railroad securities in order that the party might say it had complied with the platform pledge in this respect.

It is said that as late as this morning a committee of railroad attorneys was urging the conferees not to put such a provision in the bill. This fact was reported to the President, but did not disturb him.

The Conference Committee adopted the House long and short haul provision and the Senate provision in regard to the suspension of the increase in rates.

The latter section provides, in effect, that the proposed increases shall not go into effect for a period of 11 months from the time notice is given by the railroads; but it is provided further that the Interstate Commerce Commission shall give hearings on such questions preference over all other questions pending before it and shall make decisions thereon as speedily as possible.

The report provides that the section relating to the suspension of increases in rates and the section providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate the question of Federal regulation of stocks and bonds shall take effete immediately. The remaining portions of the bill will go into effect 60 days from the date approved.

BILL ASKS POSTPONEMENT IN PAYMENT OF CORPORATION TAX

Delay of Supreme Court in Deciding Validity of Law Given as Reason.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Senator Cullom today introduced in the Senate a joint resolution postponing until Jan. 1, the payment of the corporation tax. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Finances.

The legislation is desired because of the delay of the Supreme Court of the United States in determining the constitutionality of the corporation tax provision of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

MERCHANTS STOCK AND GRAIN CO. IS FORCED TO RETIRE

Western Union Telegraph Company Withdraws Wires and Concern Quits.

HAD 300 BRANCHES AND $15,000 A DAY TRADE

Manager Miner Is Under Indictment for Running a Bucketshop and His Partner Is Accused of Perjury—Formerly Cella Concern.

The Merchants' Stock and Grain Co., last of the so-called bucketshops to continue operations in St. Louis, and the biggest concern of its kind in the West, with 300 branch offices, went out of business Tuesday. Its hundreds of customers, who were said to do a $15,000 business with it daily, closed their deals when they saw on the blackboard a sign reading:

"Owing to contingencies arising, all trades will be closed today."

The Western Union Telegraph Co., against which an indictment containing 49 counts recently was returned in New York, owing to its supplying service to these houses, ordered its wires out of the Merchants' office Monday night. This was the cause for its closing. The company had succeeded the Cella Grain and Commission Co.

Most of the chairs in the offices at Fourth and Pine streets were vacant Tuesday. A few confirmed habitues of the place dozed in chairs. Occasionally a customer strolled in, presented a slip at the cashier's window and paid, or was paid, accordingly as chance had gone for or against him.

Frank J. Miner, one of the managers of the concern, under sentence of five years in the penitentiary for conducting the place, was not present. Patrick A. Stephens, co-manager, who is under indictment growing out of the investigation of the bucketshops, declined to make any statement. When he was asked if it were true the business of the office ran from $15,000 to $20,000 a day, as one customer had said, he replied angrily, "Whoever says that is crazy."

For nearly a year, the company has dealt only in stocks, owing to an injunction against it by the Chicago Board of Trade to prohibit it from dealing in grain futures. Originally it dealt in stocks, grain, cotton, pork, lard and ribs.

The closing of this shop marks another triumph for Assistant Circuit Attorney Newton, who waged the first successful war on such places in St. Louis.

War on Bucketshops Begun by Sager Begins to Show Results

The war against the bucketshops, begun under Circuit Attorney Sager, was not successfully prosecuted until within the last few months. Almost simultaneously with Federal indictments against 29 men said to be financial backers of the shops, Assistant Circuit Attorney Newton got the conviction against Miner.

Prior to this, Newton announced, April 11, that six other alleged bucketshops had suspended operations. They were managed, he said, by T. E. Price, J. A. Joel, James F. Flanigan, F. J. Brown, William F. Ryan and Charles Lightner and George L. Harris, the last two being partners.

Lightner and Harris had been indicted under the statute making it a felony to deal in stock and grain futures where no actual delivery is contemplated. The indictments were dropped on their assurance that they would not reopen.

Elevator Boys Directors.

Miner was convicted May 6. He did not take the stand in his own behalf, but relied on technicalities to defeat the prosecution.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Newton showed that three elevator boys were paid 50 cents each to sign their names as incorporators of the company. Former Judge Henry W. Bond drew up the papers, and called into his office Al. J. Letter, H. E. Welthrop and Con P. Carroll, all of whom were then operating elevators in the Merchants-Laclede Building. Judge Bond told them, the testimony showed, that the man who was organizing the company, didn't want his name known. Welthrop was made president of the company. He is now a huckster. Letter is now a policeman.

The Merchants' Exchange brought charges against Miner, but permitted him to resign without a hearing on them.

Newton put men on the stand who had dealt with the company, and who said they never expected the grain or stocks they bought to be delivered. They were just speculating on margins, they testified. It was shown that Miner opened a bank account for the company, and that he was at the shop in the capacity of manager.

Indictments are pending against Stevens, charging an attempt to set up a bucket-shop, and John Ryan, treasurer, on a charge of perjury, growing out of his grand jury testimony during the investigation.

The cases against Ryan and Stephens are set for Wednesday in Judge McQuillin's court.

Discovery of Telegraph Office Made by Chance in Twelfth Street

Detectives McMullen and Wells, then of the gambling squad, ran onto the outside wireroom of the company by accident. They became suspicious of a room above a harness shop at Twelfth and Pine streets, and slipped through the shop when the proprietor was not looking, into a hallway at the rear, thence up a flight of stairs.

There they found the network of wires, running to all parts of the West and Southwest, by which quotations were supplied to the branch offices of the big St. Louis shop.

The Federal indictments were returned April 1. Five of the men were millionaires. The indictments were returned at Washington, under the direction of Attorney-General Wickersham, and charged conspiracy to violate the laws of the District of Columbia, the theory being that the operators could be held legally responsible for what was done at their branch offices in Washington.

Among the men thus indicted were Louis A. Cella, St. Louis hotel proprietor and grain speculator, his brother, Angelo, and C. A. Tilles. They were in New York at the time, surrendered and gave $5000 bonds. Their cases are pending.

The indictment against Cella and his companions grew out of their alleged connection with the Standard Stock and Grain Co., with offices in St. Louis, Washington and Philadelphia, and with headquarters in Jersey City.

Simultaneously with the making public of the indictments, raids were made on shops in St. Louis, New York, Chicago, Baltimore, Pittsburg, and Jersey City.

It has been a subject of frequent comment in the St. Louis financial district that the business of the Merchants' Stock and Grain Co. was much larger apparently than many large firms having direct membership on the New York Stock Exchange.

A stock exchange membership costs from $75,000 to $100,000, and the fact that the Merchants company did not own one put the so-called wire houses at a disadvantage in competition with the Merchants company, which did not have that heavy expense.

The trades in stock at the Merchants company, all of which were based on New York Stock Exchange quotations, ranged in the aggregate from 3000 to 5000 shares a day.

REYNOLDS VOWS TO KEEP POLICE OUT OF POLITICS

President of Board Says He Suggested Changes in Ticket as Citizen.

HAS MADE NO TRADES

Has No Agreement With Howe or the Republican City Committee.

Judge Matt G. Reynolds told a Post-Dispatch reporter Tuesday that his request upon the Republican Advisory Committee for the renomination of James E. Withrow for Circuit Judge and Louis Alt for License Collector was made in the exercise of his rights as a citizen and not as president of the Police Board.

He reiterated his declaration that the Police Board shall be kept out of politics. He stated also that William E. Baird, special investigator of the Police Relief Association scandal, will submit his report to the board at Friday's meeting, and that a statement will then be given out as to what charges are to be preferred against the 11 policemen suspended in connection with it.

Judge Reynolds stated also that he had made no alliances with Jeptha D. Howe, former Republican Boss, or the Republican city organization. The delay in preferring charges against the 11 men was in no way attributable to politics, he declared, or to any combination that he has made with anybody.

Men Demand Hearing.

The suspended policemen have been clamoring for a trial for three months. They declare that they do not know what charges have been made, or will be made against them, and that they are now suspended without pay, and cannot get a hearing.

The suspended men are Lieut. Thomas McCormack, who was relieved of duty Mrch 15, and 10 others suspended March 15. The others are Sergt. John J. Noonan, Detective Edward Schenk, Patrolmen John Dunigan, Michael Donoghue, John Stead, George Beard, Michael Gannon, Henry Beerman, Walter J. Cliffe and Thomas Degnan.

"We have had to dig slowly in this Police Relief Association affair," said Judge Reynolds.

"But we have been digging all the time. The matter is so complicated, and the situation is so acute and dangerous, that we prefer to proceed with great caution so that no injustice shall be done to any man.

"Mr Baird, the special investigator, will submit his report to the Board Friday. After we have his report we expect to be able to determine definitely what is to be done. Baird has not only been continuously at work on this investigation, but he has been assisted by Andrew C. Maroney, and others.

Would Repeal Law.

"For reason that members of the board will have to try the suspended men on whatever charges are preferred against them we have decided, as far as possible, to keep out of the preliminary investigations. The law makes us both accusers and judges in cases of this kind.

"That law is unfair and it ought to be repealed. It subjects members of the board to criticism. We have not been neglecting our duty in this investigation, because we have had it going on daily under our direction. We have merely tried to keep out of it personally as much as possible so that our minds will not be prejudiced when we go to try whatever cases may result from it.

"Now as to politics; I made a promise to the public when I became President of the Police Board that the Police Department shall be kept free from politics. I intend to keep that promise or get out of the board.

"I did say to Chairman Kiel of the Republican City Committee, Otto Stifel and C. Porter Johnson that I would like to see the four Republican judges whose terms are nearing an end given a clean bill of health and renominated.

"I did say that Louis Alt has made a good License Collector and ought to be given a fair show to run again. When I became President of the Police Board I did not surrender my rights as a citizen, nor do I ever intend to subordinate them for any public office.

"I felt that I had a right as Matt G. Reynolds to express my judgment as to the candidates for the Republican party.

No Trade With Howe.

"Have you made any political alliance with Jeptha D. Howe for the purpose of helping your friends to be renominated?" Judge Reynolds was asked.

"No sir," I have not," he answered. "Howe and I are friends. He has never done me a wrong that I know of, but I am not in any alliance of any kind with him.

"The police are not going to be used by any politician or political machine—present or future—while I am at the head of the board. The others members of the board agree with me that the police must not mix in politics. I do not personally intend to have anything to do with any political machine.

"It is my judgment that Judge Withrow and Alt are entitled to reelection. I felt it my duty as a citizen to the men who were passing judgment on candidates to say as much to them. That was all there was to it."

HAMILTON TELLS OF PLUNGE FROM SKY INTO SWAMP

Aviator Thought He Saw Beautiful Meadow Only to Fall Into Water.

CHARLES K. HAMILTON has told the story of his flight from New York to Philadelphia in his own words. He describes the incidents of the voyage with dramatic interest and tells the difficulties he encountered in making the trip.

BY CHARLES KEENEY HAMILTON.

NEW YORK, June 14.—How did I enjoy my trip? That's a pretty hard question to answer offhand.

Of course, I enjoyed it, seeing that I did what I had set out to do, even though there was considerable trouble during the 12 hours, almost from the time I started till I landed back on Governor's Island.

It's hard to recall much about the first part of the trip, for it was all so easy, going down to Philadelphia. I never had a moment's uneasiness, except perhaps just as I crossed Trenton and the Delaware. There seemed to be some treacherous air currents there, and I bore them in mind coming back.

I don't need to say anything about the Philadelphia experience for every detail of it was covered by the newspaper men, but naturally I felt pleased at the reception I got, and started off expecting to beat my own time back without any trouble, for I had the wind behind me. I took a box of cigarettes with me, but they all ran out at Trenton and I threw the box away.

However, as the saying is, man proposes and God disposes. I went up very high crossing Trenton and then settled down. Presently I got to Metchuen—I think the place is called. Well, whatever its name is it fooled me and I chose the Lehigh Valley tracks, instead of the Jersey Central, as I should have.

Soon I was flying over a country I didn't recognize, and passing over some water, I said to myself, "Good, there is Staten Island," and tried to make out the upper part of the bay. Just then I heard something wrong with the engine. Those cylinders began to break a little in the buzzing, and I gave one glimpse around my shoulder. I could see two of them were missing the spark and the sparking plugs were fouled.

With six cylinders the power isn't enough to generate the speed necessary to keep aloft, and I was just bound to come down. Of course, I shut off the power, but it was just by the merest luck that I escaped landing in a clump of trees. They were tall trees, and I scraped over them with not more than a few feet to spare.

Before and beneath me was a beautiful spot, a smooth green meadow with not a roll in its surface. "I'm lucky," I thought, "to strike such a spot for landing in," and down I went with the nicest, quietest glide you ever saw.

Squish! Squash! went the beautiful meadow as I landed. It was a morass covered by long, green, undulating grass that had completely deceived me.

When I tried to get out I found the water well up to my knees. By this time a couple of farmers had appeared and I asked one of them for a cigarette. He looked at me like I was crazy, and then asked if I wanted any real help. So I got him and some more and we just lifted the machine bodily and squeegeed our way out of the marsh onto the hard ground. From there we made for the State road and I started tinkering with the machine.

It wasn't long before the crowds began to arrive and I sent word by automobile to telephone my plight to Mrs. Hamilton and my manager, Peter Young. He got busy sending down the new propeller, coming by automobile by way of Tompkinsville. I tell you I was glad to see him and the mechanics he had with him. Soon we had new spark plugs and the new propeller on and I set out for a try. It was after 4 o'clock then. I hadn't kept tab on the time much, but I'd been on the ground since just before 1 o'clock.

Youth Sets New Mark High in Air for Aeroplanists

a box kite. Then it became smaller still and those beneath could not make out the little elevating planes or the rudder through the twilight haze, and it appeared as a yellow envelope floating up near the clouds. When Brookins turned her at the tremendous height, she tilted at an angle of 60 degrees, making both planes visible—and we saw two yellow envelopes.

When Lambert, who was spending most of his time on his back, squinting up at the aeroplane along the sights of measuring instrument, announced that Brookins had passed 4000 feet, the aviator was flying erractically.

Begins the Descent.

The even circling of the aeroplane changed to a series of zigzag maneuvers and several times the machine swung far out over the fields a mile away from the Speedway inclosure. The watchers down below were beginning to get worried, when one of the other Wright pupils called out that Brookins had "throttled her down," and had begun his descent. Though the noise of the motor was but a faint hum at this time, the practiced ear of the operator had caught the change in the sound of the engine exhaust.

A few minutes later the unitiated knew that he was right when they saw the machine getting rapidly larger. It had taken Brookins 24 minutes to climb to the record height, but only six to come down. The speed of the aeroplane on the descent was estimated at close to 60 miles an hour.

As Brookins landed, easily as a bird, 30 feet from the starting rail, his fellow pupils rushed to him, yelling, and pulled him out of his seat. Then both the Wrights shook hands with him and patted him on the back.

The boy seemed very much embarrassed.

"Did I make it?" he asked. "Fine! I could have gone higher, but my right wrist got stiff. Then I lost my way up there. For about ten minutes I couldn't see anything familiar down below, and I thought I was lost."

While he was examining his stiffened wrist I noticed that neither of his hands was trembling. He was as unmoved as if he had been riding a horse. The strain one would imagine he must have been under while flying nearly a mile high apparently had no effect on him.

He told me that he noticed the coldness of the high levels. "That didn't worry me, though," he added, "it was just this confounded wrist of mine. I felt her getting stiff, and I worked my fingers every now and then, but I couldn't do that often, as I had to keep a pretty firm hold on the levers."

Wilbur Wright had tied a registering aneroid to the side of the upper plane. When it was examined after Brookins' landing nothing could be learned from it as the vibration of the machine had made the needle do all sorts of gymnastics on the paper.

is constantly tempted to compromise for the sake of preferment."

The speaker proceeded to outline the qualifications with which the modern minister must equip himself.

"The clergyman must be a man of today, interpreting the ideals of the Bible in terms of the twentieth century. His preparation is more ardorous and the scope of his knowledge more spacious that that of any other profession. He can no longer rely upon the sacredness of his calling to obtain him a hearing. He must have an unlimited familiarity with all modern thought on all modern subjects.

"He is expected to be able to discuss the ethics of employers' liabilities Sunday morning, socialism Sunday night and industrial education Monday at a teachers' meeting. On Tuesday he must be able to deal with municipal government, on Wednesday afternoon with Browning and Wednesday night with the efficacy of prayer. On Thursday he must talk to the woman's auxiliary on current topics; on Friday, address the high school on the duties of citizenship and on Saturday conduct a nature study excursion into the country. In the meantime he is working out Sunday's sermon on Prof. Royce's conception of immortality, which, of course, he must put in popularly intelligible form."

KANSAS CITY TO ST. LOUIS FLIGHT SLATED FOR JULY

Aviators Will Have 36 Hours to Cover the Specified Course.

The competitive aeroplane flight between St. Louis and Kansas City will take place during the week of July 18, according to arrangements made Tuesday evening by committeemen from the aero clubs of St. Louis and Kansas City, who met at the office of Gov. Hadley in Jefferson City. The prize will be $10,000, divided into three purses.

Gov. Hadley was chairman of the meeting. L. W. Shouse of Kansas City was secretary. Immigration Commissioner Curran announced that the money had all been subscribed.

The following committees were named:

Committee to Assure Prize and Fix Awards—John H. Curran of St. Louis, George M. Meyers and H. F. Lang of Kansas City.

Committee on Route of Flights—A. B. Lambert of St. Louis, J. D. Havens and W. B. Strang of Kansas City.

Committee on Rules Governing Contests—A. B. Lambert of St. Louis and George M. Myers of Kansas City.

The flight, over a prescribed route, will have to be made within 36 hours. Not less than five stops and not more than 10, will be arranged for towns that put up part of the money. Representatives of the Jefferson City and Boonville commercial clubs were at the meeting asking that stops be made at those towns, but it is probable that they will both be far off of the route, which, it is now believed, will follow the Wabash railroad as far as Brunswick and the Missouri River from that point.

ONLY 3 BODIES RECOVERED AFTER FIRE IN MONTREAL

26 Others Believed to Be in Basement of Destroyed Newspaper Building.

MONTREAL, June 14.—An all-night search of the ruins of the Herald Building, which was destroyed by fire yesterday, brought to light but one additional victim, making in all three recovered up to 10 o'clock today.

The bodies recovered are those of Frank Consitt, a compositor of Perth, Ont.; Laura Amesse, forewoman of the bindery, Montreal, and an unidentified man.

Relays of police and firemen are digging at the ruins, and it will be at least 36 hours more before the basement, which is believed to contain the bodies of 26 additional victims, is reached.

Reports from the hospitals indicate that the 25 injured are doing well.

DIRECTOR REFUSES TO ANSWER AND IS ORDERED TO JAIL

Frederick W. Brockman Declines to Reply After Attachment Is Served.

Frederick W. Brockman, president of the Brockman Commission Co., and one of the directors of the Lightning Lunch Co., Victoria Building, was taken to the office of Special Commissioner Leighton Shields in the Third National Bank Building Tuesday by a deputy sheriff under an attachment to testify in the suit of John Link and others against Brockmann and others, involving the control of the lunch company.

He refused to answer questions and after the withdrawal of the deputy sheriff and over the admonitions of Commissioner Shields, he walked out of the room.

Commissioner Shields ordered Brockman committed to jail, there to remain until he is ready to answer questions. The order of commitment will be placed in the hands of Sheriff Nolte, with instructions to immediately arrest Brockman and lock him up.

Attorneys Elroy V. Selleck and George Safford, representing the plaintiffs in the suit, had attachments issued by Judge Withrow, in whose court the case is pending, and these were served Tuesday by deputy sheriffs, and both Brockman and Gregg were taken to Mr. Shields' office.

Brockmann Leaves Room.

Brockman was put on the stand first and Safford began questioning him. He refused to answer all questions. Safford moved that he be committed to jail. Commissioner Shields delayed compliance.

Brockman arose and said he would have to be going, as he had important business to attend to on 'Change. Safford insisted that he had questions that he wanted to ask. Commissioner Shields reminded Brockman that he could not go because he was still under attachment.

"Well," said Brockman, "I can't stay. I will have to go. I have important interests on Change demanding my presence there at 12 o'clock.

"I will ask you this question"—began Attorney Safford.

By that time Brockman was at the door. "Good by," he said, and stepped out into the corridor.

"Mr. Commissioner," said Safford, "I insist that this man stay here."

"I'm no bouncer," said the Commissioner. "I can't keep him here if he doesn't want to stay."

He proceeded to issue the order of commitment.

An agreement was reached that Brockman would surrender himself to the Sheriff and present himself at Commissioner Shields' office June 18 at 9 a. m., in the meanthime being only constructively under arrest.

Cross-Examination Begun at Illinois Trial for Bribery

me have $100. He then handed me a bill with a blue pencil mark on it and I became suspicious of it. I asked him to get it changed and he had the clerk of the hotel change it. I noticed a man watching us in the hotel. After we were walking down the street I saw the same man following us. I called Browne's attention to it, and he said that he did not care; that 'no one had better mix up in his affairs.'"

White told of his having been employed as an investigator for the International Mercantile Agency in St. Louis and later with the Simmons Hardware Co., finally moving to East St. Louis.

Letters written by Browne to White were placed in evidence without objection by the defense. They told of small sums of money sent to White and of Browne's efforts to get a job for White, through Senator Lorimer.

"Friend Charlie," ran one of them. "Have been trying to land something for you. Have been talking to Lorimer today. He thinks he can get you something in September, when Congress opens."

Other letters admonished White to "cut out the booze to make good, and to "cut his coat according to the cloth."

One Job Is Refused.

A position at $75 a month was obtained for White, but he refused it. He met Browne at Springfield later, and Browne, according to the witness, offered him $800 to assist in a campaign for re-election. White told the minority leader, however, that he did not intend to run again.

It was when he came to testify to his visit to St. Louis to get his share of the 'jackpot" that the defense opened a bitter fight and Judge McSurely ruled out this phase of the case. The fact that no testimony concerning the "jackpot" will be heard is expected to weaken the perjury case against Representative Wilson, in addition to damaging the case against Browne. It is expected that the defense will attempt to prevent Representatives Beckmeyer and Link from testifying and they were relied upon to corroborate statements made by White.

BATH TUB TRUST UNDER SCRUTINY

Government Has Agents Looking Into Alleged Combination.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The presence of agents of the Department of Justice in several cities has disclosed the fact that the Government is investigating the existence of an alleged illegal combination popularly called the hardware or bath tub trust.

Attorney-General Wickersham today declined to discuss the subject, although he did not deny that an investigation was under way.

SCHOOL BOARD TO VOTE ON SALARY RAISES TUESDAY

Schedule for Increase in Teachers' Salaries Calls for $190,000.

An increase in the salary of teachers in the St. Louis public schools, aggregating $190,000, which was recommended by Supt. Ben Blewett, will be acted upon Tuesday night by the Board of Education. The final action completing the details of the salary raise probably will not be taken until the July meeting.

The advance follows the recent agitation in behalf of the teachers by the Teachers' Fellowship Society. At that time, there was a discussion regarding a decrease in the tax levy, but the teachers prevailed upon the board to allow the present maximum levy to stand. The board requested Blewett to prepare a list of salaries commensurate with that of other cities.

The schedule will allow an increase of approximately 20 per cent in the salary of teachers, in nearly every school. The kindergarten and first assistant directors will get the greatest advance, being 22 per cent.

The second assistants will get an increase of 18.2 per cent. The smallest increase will be made in the salaries of principals in grammar schools and teachers in the Teachers' College and high schools, because their salaries were increased last year.

The assistant principals in high schools will receive $2150 the first year, increasing annually to $3000, if Blewett's recommendations are accepted. Under the old schedule these teachers got $2200 the first year, increasing to $2576. In the district day schools the head assistants will get $1130, increasing annually to $1300, whereas they former received $967, increasing to $1100.

The instructors in manual training, domestic science and drawing will receive increases. Slight advances will be made in the salaries of teachers in the night schools and vacation schools.

PASTORS FORSAKE PULPIT FOR THE BASEBALL FIELD

Presbyterians Defeat Methodists in Weird Contest on Triple A Field.

UMPIRE'S RULE NOVEL

Baserunner Called Out on Uncaught Foul, and Spectators Gasp.

"I say, Mr. Umpire, may I retrace my steps to the vicinity of second base and recover my glasses, which in the heat and haste of departure I left on the sands adjacent to that bag? I cannot see the base lines without them."

"How did you see the third base then?" inquired T. Wainwright at first.

"Go and get them," peremptorily ordered Umpire William Smith, pastor of the Memorial Congregational Church, "you are not addressing a congregation, but you are delaying a baseball game."

So out on Triple A ball field at Forest Park Monday afternoon the crowd of more than a hundred enthusiastic partisan spectators, jamming the bleaching park settees to overflowing, took a breath of respite while they watched an elongated clergyman amble back to second, immune from the danger of a putout, recover his glasses which he lost when he circled the bag on a hit, and then, out of breath, walk back to his position on third.

All the while the umpire watched Pitcher H. R. Henderson, who prepared to try for a strikeout.

Tries to Score on a Foul.

Swift and true went the ball, when play had been called again. The Rev. J. T. Sullivan made a vain swing and again the ball was whipped over. Loudly Sullivan smote the ball and the sphere went sailing in the air—but in the wrong direction. But the noise of the collision between the ball and bat was enough for the Rev. E. N. Orr, perched on third, and, ignoring the direction of the hit, he started for the plate.

The Rev. W. Q. Donnon was catching for the Methodists, and after he had recovered the foul ball as it bounced from the backstop, it took but an instant for him to tag the runner as he slid into the plate.

It was close, but the umpire, the Rev. Mr. Smith, declared Orr officially out, ruling that the foul was not to be considered. Those who knew the rules gasped at the decision.

But what cared the Presbyterians? They had challenged the Methodist ministers of St. Louis and they won the game, 21 to 3 or 23 to 3. Neither score is official, but as four Presbyterians came in once on a single, the former probably is correct.

The Rev. J. T. Sullivan was the original Hughey Jennings along the third base line, and it was due much to his originality in drawing the attention to the Methodists, that he enabled his teammates to circle the bags nearly unnoticed.

"His arm is glass, he can't pitch, "he cried at the Rev. L. E. Todd, who was twirling for the Methodists. "Up, up, he's goin' and now he's gone" he yelled in derision at the perspiring Todd, who "blew up" in the sixth. T. Wainwright then resigned the job at first, to go into the box.

But over all the diamond rested the repose not seen during one of the Browns' regular losing games. "Fudge" was common on a strikeout, but the credit was always handed with deference to the "brother" in the box.

"Brothers, did you see that hit?" a spectator would exclaim when a fielder would bobble an infield drive while a dispute on a base would always end amicably, Umpire Smith giving in with, "Brother, you are right. You were safe by a mile, the ball should not have reached the bag ahead of you. You may advance to home if you like."

But they would rather advance on hits, and although errors and hits were mixed in one grand medley, it served for the Presbyterians to run at will and the pelts of the Methodists were soon hanging at the belts of the Presbyterians.

But Tuesday the preachers know something of "the morning after" you read about. Stiff in joints, some unable to walk without canes, they will long have occasion to remember the game of Monday afternoon.

The teams were made up as follows: Methodists—S. Wainwright cf, H. Davenport 3b, W. Q. Donnon c, R. S. True 2b, L. E. Todd, p and 1b; T. Wainwright, 1b and p; H. C. Leonard lf, I. L. Holt ss, J. E. Martin rf. Presbyterians—M. T. Pearce cf, C. T. Squires 2b, C. M. Rauch 1b, W. M. Case c, M. H. Anderson 3b, W. G. Evans ss, H. R. Henderson p, E. N. Orr lf, J. T. Sullivan rf.

That Pastors' Ball Game Was Real Scrappy Affair

HADLEY AFTER A NEW EXCISE COMMISSIONER

Letter to Reynolds Inquiring for Excise Man's Successor Causes Row.

Excise Commissioner Henry S. Caulfield, who has sent his resignation to Gov. Hadley, to take effect Dec. 1, made the following answer to an inquiry to the Post-Dispatch, by telegraph, Tuesday from Springfield, Mo., where he is appearing before the Court of Appeals:

"I shall have served as long as the public interest demands, and I wish to practice law."

Friends of Caulfield have suggested other reasons, which have to do with his political future. They say he may be a candidate for the United States senatorship or the mayoralty.

Caulfield sent his resignation to Gov. Hadley two weeks ago, with the request that it become effective July 31. The Governor prevailed upon Caulfield to retain the office until Dec. 1.

Caulfield was appointed Excise Commissioner at the expiration of his term in Congress. He at first declined to accept the appointment. Gov. Hadley went to Washington and persuaded him to take it.

Reynolds Causes Row.

Gov. Hadley has been trying to find an acceptable man to take Caulfield's place. His inquiry for such a man, addressed to President Reynolds of the Board of Police Commissioners, was indirectly responsible for starting a big row among local Republicans.

Judge Reynolds is said to have declared at a Republican meeting that the Governor's request practically conferred upon him the authority of deputy governor in St. Louis. He referred to the letter, according to Republican leaders, in pressing a demand for the renomination of Louis Alt for License Collector and Judge Withrow for Circuit Judge.

Caulfield served one term as Representative in Congress from the Eleventh District. He was made a member of the Judiciary Committee by Speaker Cannon, a rare honor for a first year man in Congress. Otto Stifel, who has long been a power in local Republican politics, wanted Caulfield nominated for Mayor. Former Boss Howe, who had control of the actual machinery of the party at the time nominations were made, would not approve Caulfield and demanded Kreismann. But for Howe's opposition, Caulfield would have been the Republican nominee for Mayor.

HADLEY DECLARES CAULFIELD LONG AGO WANTED TO RESIGN

JEFFERSON CITY, June 14.—Gov. Hadley said this morning that Henry S. Caulfield, Excise Commissioner, has been wanting to resign for several months, but that he persuaded him to continue in office.

"Caulfield several months ago handed me his resignation, but I persuaded him to withdraw it. He is anxious, he says, to resume the practice of law. I hope that I will be able to retain him as Excise Commissioner during my administration," the Governor said.

It was learned today that Caulfield telephoned to Gov. Hadley yesterday asking to be permitted to resign, but the Governor strongly urged him to hang on. Caulfield's resignation is not in the Governor's hands, but it is believed that it is understood between them that Caulfield will retire near the close of this year.

Gov. Hadley has on many occasions expressed himself as pleased with Caulfield's tact and good sense in the management of the St. Louis excises.

JUDGMENT OBTAINED BY CITY AGAINST WABASH CONFIRMED

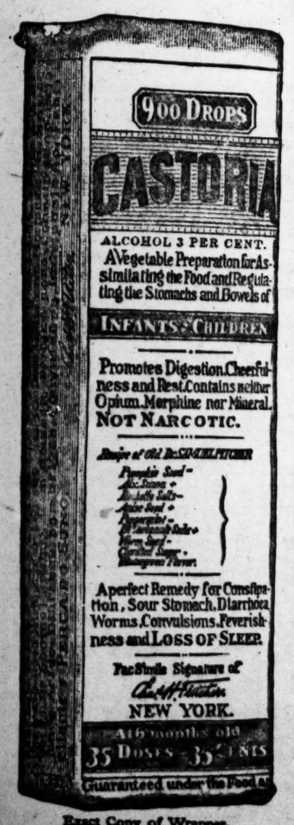

The judgment for $17,507, which St. Louis obtained against the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Co., growing out of the construction of a bridge on King's highway over its tracks, was affirmed by the Supreme Court at Jefferson City Tuesday.

Under an ordinance passed by the Municipal Assembly when this bridge was built, the Frisco agreed to meet the cost of it in return for the franchise grants by the city. The Frisco resisted payment on the ground that the bridge was not properly constructed.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. Frederick D. Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., says: I have found Fletcher's Castoria very useful in the cure of complaints of children.

Dr. William C. Bloomer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: In my practice I am glad to recommend your Castoria, knowing it is perfectly harmless and always satisfactory.

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

GIRL WHO ASKS BUILDING BE SOLD TO PAY FOR LOSS OF ARM

MISS MAY TRAVIS COOPER

ORDERED TO SELL CENTURY BUILDING FOR GIRL'S CLAIM

Sheriff Announces Auction June 30 to Satisfy $5000 Judgment for Arm.

The sale of the Century Building at public auction on June 30 has been announced by Sheriff Nolte, whose aid was invoked as a last resort, after seven years' litigation, by Miss May Travis Cooper, 5107 Cote Brilliante avenue. Her left arm was cut off at the elbow in an elevator accident in the building April 29, 1903, and she has since been engaged in attempts to collect damages. A wealthy woman has helped her in her suit.

Unless the suit is settled before the date set for the sale, the building, at Ninth and Olive streets, worth more than $1,000,000, will be auctioned so that Miss Travis may realize $5000, awarded her in the courts. The Sheriff considers it unlikely that the owners will let the building go to auction.

As clinchers in her case, Miss Cooper, through her attorney, Joseph A. Wright, has filed five new suits. Two are against the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., which has the management of the building, and which has been held jointly liable with the owners. One is a garnishment suit against Rudolph F. Kilgen, former secretary and treasurer of the Century Realty Co. The fourth is against the Frankfort Marine, Accident and Plate Glass Insurance Co. and the fifth is against the Travelers' Insurance Co., which assumed together the risk of accidents occurring in the Century Building.

Since the first suit for damages was brought, the building has changed hands three times. At the date of the accident it was in the possession of the Century Realty Co. In March, 1906, the structure was acquired by the Syndicate Trust Co., which disposed of it three months later to the present owners, the Consolidated Investment Co.

Miss Cooper filed suit in the summer of 1903, and two years later was nonsuited by Judge Hough on the technicality that her petition did not show what caused the elevator to fall.

In the fall of 1905 she instituted a second suit before Judge Ryan and a special jury. In January, 1906, she received a verdict of $5000 and costs, but a month later Judge Ryan set aside the judgment and ordered a new trial.

Miss Cooper appealed to the Supreme Court. In December, 1909, the Supreme Court reversed and remanded the case, with directions to re-enter the verdict and judgment for $5000, bearing interest from the date of the original entry. Though six months have passed, Miss Cooper has been unable to obtain the enforcement of the Supreme Court's order. In the seven years, costs of $1800 have accrued.

Miss Cooper was a night operator for the Kinloch Telephone Co. on the top floor of the Century Bldg. At 7 a. m., as she started home, the elevator, with the door open, was standing at the top floor, apparently ready for service. She and a companion, Miss Rita Penn, stepped in and found that there was no conductor aboard. The car shot down as Miss Cooper was springing out and her arm was caught between the roof of the elevator and the floor, while her body was flung on top of the car. Her arm, acting as a wedge, kept the cage from dropping to the bottom of the shaft and saved Miss Penn's life.

But for the assistance of a wealthy woman, whose name she declined to make public, Miss Cooper says she would have been compelled to drop the litigation years ago from lack of funds. Since the accident Miss Cooper has been unable to work and has lived with her parents.

DUTCH STEAMER IS WRECKED OFF CURACAO; 20 DIE

Governor of Buen Ayre Among Those Lost With the Van Herdt.

By Associated Press.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, June 14.—The Government schooner Van Herdt has been wrecked on the northeast coast of Curacao. The captain, crew and passengers, with the exception of four sailors and one passenger, were drowned. The lost, believed to exceed a score, include the Governor of Buen Ayre.

The Van Herdt was bound for this port from Buen Ayre, a Dutch West Indian island on the Venezuelan coast, 30 miles east of the Island of Curacao. She struck during the thick weather of Sunday night. News of the disaster was brought here by the five survivors.

The Van Herdt was a small craft engaged in the inter-island traffic of the Dutch Antilles. Her passengers were residents of the islands.

HARD ON CHILDREN

When Teacher Has Coffee Habit.

"Best is best, and best will ever live." When a person feels this way about Postum they are glad to give testimony for the benefit of others.

A school teacher down in Miss. says: "I had been a coffee drinker since my childhood, and the last few years it had injured me seriously.

"One cup of coffee taken at breakfast would cause me to become so nervous that I could scarcely go through with the day's duties, and this nervousness was often accompanied by deep depression of spirits and heart palpitation.

"I am a teacher by profession, and when under the influence of coffee had to struggle against crossness when in the school room.

"When talking this over with my physician, he suggested that I try Postum, so I purchased a package and made it carefully according to directions; found it excellent of flavour, and nourishing.

"In a short time I noticed very gratifying effects. My nervousness disappeared, I was not irritated by my pupils, life seemed full of sunshine, and my heart troubled me no longer.

"I attribute my change in health and spirits to Postum alone."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

MAN HELD FOR $350,000 THEFT SAYS HE MUST HAVE DOUBLE

California Prisoner Positively Identified as J. E. Marcell, California Bank Robber.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 14.—Though positively identified last night as J. E. Marcell, who is accused of robbing the State Bank of Highland, Kan., of $350,000, the prisoner held here on the charge of passing fraudulent checks denies that he is Marcell.

M. C. Dagginger, son of a prominent merchant of Highland, and A. E. Englehart, who arrived here with Dagginger, both identified the man as Marcell.

"Gentlemen, you are wrong," exclaimed the prisoner. "My name is James Woodbury. I never had any other. This seems to be a case of mistaken identity. I probably have a double named Marcell and he may be the man you are looking for."

Chief of Police Snow of Kansas City has wired the local police that he would send an officer with requisition papers to take the prisoner to Kansas.

PRIEST WILL USE SHOTGUN TO KEEP OUT TENDERLOIN

Father Mullen Will Resist Removal of Red Light District.

PLEADS WITH CHIEF

Advises Parishioners to Turn Out With Arms and Firebrands if Necessary.

The removal of the tenderloin of St. Louis to the district west of Union Station and south of Market street would be resisted with shotgun and torch if necessary, according to the statement of the Rev. Father Thomas Mullen of St. Malachy's parish. He has advised his parishioners not to hesitate to resort to the bullet and firebrand in the protection of their homes from the social evil.

Father Mullen told a Post-Dispatch reporter Tuesday that he is ready to take up the fight once before made by the Rev. Father Ziegler, when an attempt was made to segregate the St. Louis underworld near the railroad gateway within the confines of St. Malachy's parish. Father Mullen succeeded Ziegler as priest of that parish, and has been in charge a year.

Chief of Police Young, however, says there is no intention of moving the district there and that it will remain in its present limits, for some time anyway.

Several years ago Father Mullen led a crusade against lid clubs in St. Michael's parish, in North St. Louis. After a fight lasting almost a year, 27 clubs were raided and forced to quit, and the illegal clubs were driven from the parish. Father Mullen is an advocate of the methods used by a priest who went into one of the clubs and with his black-thorn walking stick shattered the lights and broke the glasses and mirrors in the place.

"Strong Measures Necessary."

"Strong measures are necessary when an attempt is made to disturb the moral life of a community," Father Mullen said Tuesday. "The law should protect the moral life as well as the physical life. I would be derelict in my duty to the families in my parish if I did not forcibly object to the segregation of the social evil in my parish. For that reason I have advised the use of shotguns and torches if it becomes necessary to prevent this proposed outrage upon my people.

"If the tenderloin should be located at the place proposed, it would become a veritable 'Death Valley.' It would be isolated at the very gateway of the city and flaunted in the face of the traveling world as well as our citizens. It would be like going to an island where crime is rampant. It would become a sort of legalized island of crime. The social evil must not be legalized and it will not be legally thrust upon St. Malachy's Parish."

In a letter sent to Police Chief Young last Friday, Father Mullen announced his determination in this language: "I shall advise the use of the shotgun and if necessary the torch to keep our homes pure."

He followed this by uttering the advice to the public at Monday night's meeting of the Pure Homes Association. Another meeting of the organization will be held next Sunday at 3 p. m., to which is invited the general public of all denominations.

According to Father Mullen, a plea will first be made to Chief Young. It will then be discussed with President Reynolds of the Police Board, and an appeal will be taken to Gov. Hadley if unsuccessful. The courts will be asked to interfere, and as a last resort, the shotgun and torch will be used, Father Mullen said.

Controls Vacuum Cleaning Patents.

By purchasing 85 patents covering as many processes and inventions in the field of stationary vacuum cleaning, formerly owned by different concerns, the McCrum-Howell Co. of New York expects to terminate the costly war of inventors and manufacturers of vacuum cleaners and eliminate wasteful factory methods.

It is believed by the company that this will result in a decrease of the price of cleaning systems. Under the new arrangement the new cleaning systems will be made under the name of the "Richmond," and will contain the best features of the many inventions and improvements.

STREET CARS CARRY BANNERS IN CELEBRATION OF FLAG DAY

Street cars, buildings, homes and flag poles are decorated with "Old Glory" Tuesday in commemoration of "Flag day," the anniversary of the day upon which the Stars and Stripes were first unfurled.

As each street car left the barns Tuesday morning, it was draped with two flags, one on each side at the top. From every city and Federal building, flags are floating. In the residence section, flags of various sizes are draped from the balconies or hung in the windows.

In conjunction with the Sons of the Revolution, the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution participated in a patriotic program at Jefferson Barracks. Among those who spoke were the Rev. W. J. Williamson of the Third Baptist Church and Mrs. Robert B. Olive, State Regent of the D. A. R.

ALTON EMBEZZLER ASSERTS HE WILL PAY HIS SHORTAGE

Confesses, in First Newspaper Interview, That He Has Served Mammon.

SONS TO EARN MONEY

Religious Studies Will Be Abandoned, That They May Help Their Father.

"I have served Mammon all these years," was the tearful statement made Tuesday by Albert E. Bassett, Alton's defaulting church worker, to a Post-Dispatch reporter, in the first interview he has granted since a shortage of $24,000 was detected in the Baptist leader's accounts. He was cashier of the Illinois Glass Co.

"I've served one god, Mammon, all my life," wept the Sunday-school superintendent, "but now I'm going to serve the other God."

When the reporter called at the home, Mrs. Bassett at first declared that her husband was not in, and then that he could not be seen. In the midst of her explanations Bassett himself came to the door, wan and withered, his eyes red-rimmed from weeping.

"I came out to thank you for your piece in the paper," he said in a tremulous voice. "I haven't read it myself, but my family told me about it. You were as lenient as possible.

Sobs as He Tells Story.

"There is nothing more you can do to help me. The injury has been done. I am not under surveillance, but I am in charge of the officers of the glass company. I am ready at any moment to answer a telephone call or message from them. I am not running away. You don't know—how—deeply I—feel this."

The broken embezzler drew a handkerchief from his pocket and sobbed aloud, wiping his eyes. Mastering himself with an effort, he continued, but tears continued to well up in his eyes.

"I've turned all my property over to them," he said, "my home, my cottage at Chautauqua, all my stock, and even my life insurance. I am going to stay right here and try to live down all this disgrace I've brought on my wife and children, by trying to pay back every cent I've taken.

"I don't understand how the amount was so much, but it is there on the books against me and I can't refute them. I took it in small sums at a time, $200 to $300. I didn't realize how much I had taken—but let bygones be bygones. It only remains for me to make amends.

"My ultimate aim is to restore myself to that position of trust I once held before the public, and I shall dedicate the rest of my life to that purpose."

Bassett refused to make a statement for publication unless the reporter obtained permission from George Levis, president of the glass company.

Accused Forbidden to Talk.

"I was forbidden by Mr. Levis to see newspaper men," said Bassett. "You know the company could have done a great deal more to me than it has done." Bassett referred to the promise of immunity made him by Levis in case he made restoration of his plunder and remained within reach.

Levis readily gave permission for the publication of the statement, and explained that, in his direction to Bassett, he had wished merely to spare him the ordeal of an interview.

Bassett's sons said Tuesday that they would abandon their plans for entering the ministry and enter some more lucrative work in order to help their father make his shortage good.

Carl Bassett, now a student at Shurtleff College, had intended to become a Baptist preacher. Edward, a year his senior, has been studying at the Moody Institute in Chicago to become a missionary.

Undecided as to Prosecution.

Whether Bassett will be prosecuted has not yet been determined, but his friends are confident that there will be no procedure against him. He was in conference nearly two hours Monday night at his home with George and Harry Levis, president and treasurer of the glass company, and his sons said the conference was to determine whether there should be prosecution. The Levis brothers declined to discuss it, or to say whether any further discrepancies had been found in the books, on which accountants still are at work.

SPEEDWELL CARS SHOW WORTH

Perfect Scores Registered in Several Endurance Runs.

The absence of mechanical troubles on long, trying trips, and the perfect scores registered in several endurance and reliability runs, place the Speedwell autos in the first rank for long-distance touring. The company is completing an addition to its plant at Dayton, O., which will increase the output.

An excellent test of the Speedwell's ability in every department was made on two long tours, one of which covered 10,000 miles. The trip was begun at New York. The route led south to Houston, Tex., and north to Dayton, with many side trips of several days' duration.

A tour of 7000 miles in a Speedwell by C. J. Loomis of Dayton covered almost all the New England States, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and West Virginia. The Berkshire and Allegheny Mountains were crossed twice, and the White, Orange and Blue Ridge ranges were crossed once each.

WIFE FEARS HUSBAND DROWNED HIMSELF BECAUSE OF WORRY

Newspaper Carrier Threatened to End Life Because of Debt and Is Missing.

Convinced that her husband, Alfred Handschug, 24 years old, has drowned himself in the river, Mrs. Katie Handschug Tuesday offered a reward of $25 for his body.

Handschug, a newspaper carrier of 3507 Indiana avenue, disappeared last Wednesday. The day before he had told his wife he was discouraged with their inability to get out of debt and had decided to drown himself.

When he left home, Handschug wore no coat, but had on a waistcoat, a leather cap and a dark blue shirt. He wore light gray trousers.

Mrs. Handschug says her husband earned $17 a week, but that they had gone into debt through illness and the death of a baby.

JUDGE LATSHAW'S HOUSE AFIRE 4 TIMES IN 4 DAYS

Series of Blazes in Kansas City Home Are Mysterious.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 14.—Four times in four days fire has been discovered at the home of Judge R. S. Latshaw, Twelfth street and Bennington avenue. At 4 o'clock yesterday a blaze was found in the Latshaw barn.

It had been started in the loft.

"I don't know to what to attribute the fires," Judge Latshaw said last night. "It seems incredible that a sane person, meaning mischief, would operate in the day time. I don't know of anyone I have sentenced who would be likely to turn firebug."

Latshaw was the trial Judge in the Hyde case.

Youth Who Earned His College Training by Selling Papers

PAYS WAY THROUGH SCHOOL BY SALES OF POST-DISPATCH

Oscar Block Is Graduated in Civil Engineering on Earnings as Newsboy.

Oscar Block, who was graduated in civil engineering from Washington University last week, paid his way through school with money earned selling the Post-Dispatch.

The former newsboy will enter upon the practice of his profession in St. Louis. He has received offers to go to the Philippines and to Ohio, but he prefers to start his career in St. Louis, where he earned his first money.

For many years Block sold newspapers to the business men and employes of Cupples Station. He sold many papers every day and saved his earnings. He was one of the honor graduates from Yeatman High School and won a year's scholarship in Washington University.

After school hours, while he was attending public school, he would hasten to the big Cupples block with his papers. He had a list of regular customers in the building which he supplied with papers. He had as many customers as he could serve.

He retained his business at the station until two years ago, when he gave it up, having accumulated sufficient money to pay his expenses in school.

He is now 22 years old and was one of the brightest students in Washington University. He began selling papers when he was a very small boy.

PACIFIC STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY ENDS LONG CAREER

Royal Mail Steam Packet Company Absorbs Historic Maritime Enterprise.

The absorption of the Pacific Steam Navigation Co. by the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. of Great Britain marks the passing of a historic steamship line. For nearly 70 years ships of the Pacific company have been running from the British Isles through the Straits of Magellen to the west coast of South America. But with the completion a few months ago on the Transandean tunnel, connecting the Atlantic and Pacific coasts by railway, the traffic and mail service were ended.

Although a British institution, the Pacific company was created by an American, William Wheelwright of Newburyport, Mass. He was first consul at Guayaquil, Ecuador, when the project entered his mind. He sought a mail subsidy from Congress, but was refused. England granted the subsidy and he built a fleet of ships and the service was put into operation in the early 40s.

The Royal Mail Co., by absorbing the Pacific Co., becomes one of the most formidable of the National mail corporations of the British empire.

The Royal Mail was founded in 1838, with a subsidy of $1,200,000 a year, and this was increased to $1,350,000 when the company's service was extended to the River Platte. These payments were regularly maintained for many years, without any remonstrance from the British Government or its taxpayers, until the Royal Mail interests had become firmly established in all ports between Jamaica and Argentine, and this company, also, had grown to the magnitude of a British institution, and made for itself a history as proud as that of the Pacific Steam Navigation Co.

TAFT WILL GO ON STUMP TO AID G. O. P. IN THE FALL

President Will Break Precedents and Take Part in Congressional Campaign.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—President Taft will break all precedents for Presidents in the congressional campaigns this year and take the stump for the Republican party. In the past the President has contended himself to remain at home and advise the voters by private letters to citizens, who made them public. This has been President Taft's plan, but it has been changed. Mr. Taft will spend the summer at Beverly, Mass., but on Oct. 1 he will go to Cincinnati to see his friends. From that point he will start on a speechmaking tour. It is expected that the President will make ten politican speeches during the campaign. He will make them in the cities which may be called the battleground of the coming campaign. The communities in the middle west which have been asking the President to appear before their citizens will be gratified during the campaign. The President will devote himself in his speeches to defense of the administration and to an exposition of what has been accomplished.

SPARKS FROM THE BIG SMOKESTACK OF THE NEWS FOUNDRY

NEW YORK, June 14.—The consumption of alcoholic beverages has decreased during the last two years $110,185,600, according to today's issue of the American Grocer. This publication says that during 1909 the consumption of liquors was: Whisky, $568,913,331; beer, $879,872,542; wines, $107,219,990; total, $1,554,005,863.

For 1907 the estimated total retail cost of liquors was $1,664,191,463. According to the Bureau of Statistics, the population increased 2,749,966 in the same period. The per capita use of spirits is the smallest since 1900 and of beer since 1905. Last year's consumption of tea, coffee and cocoa was the largest since 1905.

Twelve-Year-Old Boy Cracks Postoffice Safe Like Expert.

DENVER, Colo., June 14.—Postoffice Inspectors have been ordered from this city to Palmerlee, N. M., to take charge of one of the youngest safe crackers in criminal history.

The prisoner, who has confessed to the robbery of the Palmerlee postoffice, is a 12-year-old Mexican lad. He broke open the safe like an experienced "yeggman," took what money it contained, but left stamps and other Government papers.

According to the boy's story, he was carefully trained for the robbery by a gang of Mexicans.

Girl Breaks World's Record for Women in High Jump

NEW MILFORD, Conn., June 14.—At the field meet in connection with the graduation exercises of the Ingleside School for Girls here today, Carolyn Hale of the class of 1911 of New York City, broke the world's record for girls in the running high jump by clearing the bar at 4 feet 7⅝ inches.

She also won five of the six events on the program.

Rat Tangled in Dynamo Causes Heavy Loss at Gary

CHICAGO, June 14.—The United States Steel Corporation at Gary wants cats. The demand for cats is due to the number of rats that infest the plant.

For months the company has been pestered by rodents and every known form of poison and traps have been tried without success. The final blow came when one of the rats got tangled up in one of the great dynamos, which gives power to the blast furnace mill.

This tied the work up for several hours and resulted in the loss of several thousand dollars. Gary was hunted in vain for stray cats and as a last resort an advertisement was inserted in a Gary paper.

Plans to Make Mailman Harbingers of the Weather

WASHINGTON, June 14.—To extend the United States Weather Bureau service to the rural districts, by making every rural mail carrier a herald of the official predictions, is the unique idea of representative McHenry, who has introduced a bill to that effect.

McHnry proposes in his bill to have every vehicle in the rural mail delivery service equipped with flags, denoting the weather prediction for the day. The rural mail wagons thus, in leaving their starting point each day, would fly from their tops flags which would indicate to every farmer and country resident the opinion of the Government forecaster as to what the weather would be for the next 24 hours.

Suspension or dismissal from the service is fixed in the bill as a penalty for the failure or refusal of a rural carrier to comply with its terms.

Will Carry Out His Mother's Wish After Lapse of 22 Years

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 14.—Just before George Lawson's mother died here, 22 years ago, she called her son to her bedside and asked that she be buried beside her husband and several children in Wheeling, W. Va.

"All right; I'll see that your wish is carried out," promised Lawson.

Today Lawson got the last of enough money to make the trip and Thursday he will start East with the body of his parent.

TRY THIS SIMPLE HOME RECIPE FOR STOMACH MISERY

Seems to Afford Immediate Relief for Indigestion, Chronic Constipation and Similar Ailments.

Many readers who suffer from sour stomach, heartburn, indigestion and belching of gas after eating, will be glad to learn of a way to avoid and overcome all such miseries in future.

The following simple but effective recipe can be filled by any reliable druggist, or you can mix the ingredients yourself at home:

Buy 3½ ounces Essence of Pepsin, ½ ounce Cascara Aromatic and a 1 ounce bottle of Compola. Be sure you get Compola in the original bottle with seal unbroken so as to get its full strength, as the genuine is put up only in sealed 1 ounce bottles. Have your Druggist put the Essence of Pepsin and the Cascara Aromatic in a 6 ounce bottle. Then you can add the Compola at home, mix thoroughly, and the remedy is ready for use.

Shake well before taking. Dose for adults, one teaspoonful after each meal, dose for children, ¼ to ½ teaspoonful after each meal.

Any reliable druggist should have the above ingredients in stock.

Should your druggist be unable to supply any of them, he can get them from his wholesale house.

There's nothing like being able to eat heartily and at the same time enjoy your meals without any of the painful after effects that so many people experience.

The above simple home remedy also overcomes chronic constipation. It is surely worth a trial, and we are glad that we have the opportunity of benefiting readers by calling attention to the matter in this way.

CHARLTON KILLED HIS WIFE, ITALIAN OFFICIAL AVERS

Crown Procurator Believes American Will Soon Land in New York.

HAD MANY QUARRELS

Neighbors Tell of Violent Arguments Between Bride and Bridegroom.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
Copyright, 1910, by Press Pub. Co. (New York World.)

COMO, Italy, June 14.—"Tell the New York World and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch we want Porter Charlton arrested on a charge of wife murder and that he will doubtless land in New York."

So said Count Guiglia, Procurator of the King, to the Post-Dispatch today, after an exhaustive examination of the evidence so far discovered touching the crime in which Mrs. Mary Scott Castle Charlton was beaten insensible in her villa and her body thrust into a trunk, which was weighted with a large stone and dropped into the waters of Lake Como, from which it was recovered last Friday.

Count Guiglia's positive statement to the correspondent was made in the face of developments which convinced many that young Charlton was also a victim of the murderer who took the life of his bride, and that his body, like hers, was hidden in the waters of the lake of Como. A portion of a man's coat was dragged to the surface from the bottom of the lake yesterday, and fishermen living near the villa which was occupied by the Charltons positively identified it as a garment belonging to the young husband. The spot where the coat was found was close to the place where the trunk with the grewsome contents was recovered.

Coat Upholds Consul's Hypothesis.

The finding of the coat, in the opinion of many, strengthens the theory advanced by Charles M. Caughy, the American Consul at Milan, that a double murder was committed and that young Charlton's body will yet be found at the bottom of the lake.

Count Guiglia gave the Post-Dispatch correspondent an opportunity to examine evidence which has not been revealed to anyone else excepting the detectives who are working on the strange murder.

If, as Count Guiglia believes, Charlton murdered his bride, jealousy was the motive. The couple arrived here from Venice May 5, stopping for two days at the Hotel Suisse. Their luggage consisted of two bags and three trunks. They were apparently very happy.

They rented a villa at Moltrasio, which is five miles from town. The villa, which overlooks the lake, is delightfully located and they expected to occupy it three months. A week after they took possession the servant they had hired left.

On May 17 Mr. and Mrs. Charlton were in the Hotel Suisse drinking champagne. They had a bitter quarrel there and at 2 o'clock in the morning were ordered out of the hotel. They got a rowboat to take them back to Moltrasio. The last time the couple were seen in public was on Sunday, June, 5. They visited a small hotel near their villa.

Storm on Night of Seventh.

The next day, Monday, the 6th, a man who called at the villa to deliver some wine was refused admittance by Charlton. The night of Tuesday the 7th, was very stormy, a tiny stream running past the house becoming a small river, the rushing of the waters making a great noise.

All that week milk that had been delivered at the house remained outside untouched.

The last seen of Charlton was on Wednesday, the 8th, two days before the trunk with the body of the handsome American woman inside, was fished out of the lake. On that day Charlton visited a public house in Moltrasio, and he was then noticeably excited and nervous, according to those who saw him. The place in the lake where the trunk and the body were found is about thirty yards out from a landing which connects with a road. Two hundred yards away on this road stands the villa, which the Charltons occupied.

The Post-Dispatch correspondent learned today that when the body was found in the trunk it was dressed precisely the same as when Mrs. Charlton was last seen in public.

First Husband's Letters.

The letters found in the trunk were love letters written to the murdered woman 5 years ago by Castle, her first husband, before they were married.

Further search of the villa has revealed the torn scraps of a letter. When these were pieced together by Count Guiglia and the Post-Dispatch correspondent, it proved to be a letter written by her at the time she lived in New York. It was addressed to her first husband and was signed "May." It evidently was written at the time their divorce suit was pending. In the letter she begged him to return all of her letters and directed him, until the divorce was granted, to communicate with her only through her lawyer. In the closing paragraph she expressed kindly wishes for his well-being.

It is plain, according to the authorities, that Mr. and Mrs. Charlton quarreled frequently about her first marriage. It is the official opinion that one of these quarrels developed into a fight, in which the man was victor and believing that he had killed her put the body in the trunk. They think he dragged the trunk to the street and there put it on a hand car which he pushed down to the lake.

The authorities are of the opinion that the final quarrel was over the love letters she received from the man who after they were written became her first husband. These, it is thought, infuriated Charlton and caused him to throw them into the trunk with the body, but overlooking the scraps of the letter which were pieced together.

Trunk Was Charlton's.

The trunk in which the body was hidden belonged to Charlton. All of the other baggage is intact, a fact which, in the opinion of authorities, goes to discredit the theory that Charlton also was murdered.

Constantine Ispolaff, the Russian artist who helped the Charltons select the villa, still remains in custody and continues to deny any guilty knowledge of the crime, but the authorities are firm in their conviction that he has not told all he knows.

How to Know a Woman by the Clothes She Wears

BY MARGUERITE MARTYN.

THE CREPE DE CHINE GIRL.
Being No. 5 in a Pictorial Series Drawn for the Post-Dispatch.

THE leaning, languishing, luxury-loving lady knows all too well that she is more effective as she drapes herself over the furniture amid mirrors and soft lights when she is attired in clinging crepe de chine of filmy, floating messaline that is weighted at the hem with some heavy jewel or tassel.

Lazily, indolently, she takes to soft cushioned cozy corners like a kitten does to cream. She might be keen and alert as a tiger cat if she were not so confident of her charms.

Maybe she is sentimental enough to live on love this languishing one, but it would have to be all for her and even then I think she prefers rich jewels and comfortable surroundings and even then she will indulge herself in discontent.

JUDGE PAUL CHARLTON HAS NOT HEARD FROM HIS SON

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Judge Paul Charlton, solicitor of the War Department, whose son, Porter, is being sought in connection with the mysterious death of his wife in Como Lake, Italy, was at his office yesterday for a few minutes. He declined to discuss the progress of the search for his son or the death of his daughter-in-law, who was Mrs. Mary Scott Castle before her marriage a short time ago to the young Washington boy.

The report that Porter's coat had been found in the lake in which the trunk containing the woman's body was found, served to strengthen the suspicion of Judge Charlton that young Porter was murdered, too.

A dispatch to London, stating that the father of Charlton had received a message from his missing son was declared untrue by Judge Charlton.

A brother of Judge Charlton came to Washington from Iowa during the day, and will stay with him until his anxiety is relieved.

The only news received by the State Department in the case was that Minister Leishman has gone from Rome to Milan to take up personally the conduct of the investigation of the mystery.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

W. P. Sanders Dies at St. Joseph.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 14.—Walter P. Sanders, 79 years old, died at his home here today. He was an old plainsman, and was engaged in many battles with Indians while freighting between St. Joseph and Denver before the days of railroads. He was a pioneer Missouri River hardware merchant.

ROUGH RIDERS TO MEET ROOSEVELT, MOBILIZE IN CITY

Southern Delegation Departs for the East From Union Station Tuesday.

Under command of Ben H. Colbert of Tishomingo, Ok., a section of the Roosevelt Rough Riders' Association will depart from Union Station at 9 p. m. Tuesday for Cincinnati on their way east to participate in the ceremonies attendant upon the return from Europe of former President Theodore Roosevelt.

A special train over the B. & O. Southwestern will carry the Spanish-American warriors, who are paying their own way to do honor to the man under whom they fought at Las Guasimas and San Juan Hill. On the way comrades will be picked up from time to time. Another train, eastward bound from Chicago, will meet the riders mobilizing in the South at Washington, D. C., on Thursday. On that day the riders will pay their respects to President Taft at the White House, departing the same evening for New York, where they are to be entertained by the Eastern division of their association.

Roosevelt's Rough Riders' Association consists of all surviving members of the original regiment that fought the two memorable battles in Cuba in 1898. Originally there were 1282 members. At present, it is estimated, not more than 600 survive. They have scattered to all quarters of the world. In battle 34 per cent of the men and 43 per cent of officers were killed in the charges that Col. Roosevelt led.

Among those already in St. Louis for the trip are: Charles B. Ivy of Waco, Tex.; W. M. McGinty of Stillwater, Ok.; Dr. Charles S. Lynch, Boswell, Ok.; L. D. Muxlow, Guthrie, Ok.; Theodore E. Stidham, Muskogee, Ok.; Joseph A. Randolph, Waukomis, Ok., and J. T. Carroll of Old Mexico. The latter is conductor on the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad and claims the distinction of being the only railroad conductor in the Rough Riders' Association.

GLIDDEN TOUR IS STARTED WITH 27 CARS IN CONTEST

Half of Usual Number of Autos Compete in Endurance Run Across Country.

CINCINNATI, O., June 14.—Twenty-seven cars, about half the usual number of starters, were lined up for the word when the 1910 Glidden tour started from Government Square here today. Of these fifteen were contestants for the Glidden trophy and twelve were entered for the Chicago trophy, a prize available for machines in the runabout class.

In addition to the contesting cars, there were three automobiles for officials of the tour, four for newspaper men and several for emergency use. One newspaper car carried block, rope and tackle and in addition a big box on the front, built in two compartments and labeled "first aid for the injured."

Automobile enthusiasts of this vicinity were out in force to see the start and nearly 100 escorting machines, most of them manned by members of the Automobile Club of Cincinnati, left the city with the tourists. It was planned by many of these escorts to "blaze the way" for the contestants as far as Louisville, where the first night stop was scheduled.

The schedule follows, with date, starting point, noon stops, miles, finish and day's mileage in order:

June 14—Cincinnati, Lexington, Ky., 83.3; Louisville, 162.
June 15—Louisville, Bowling Green, Ky., 130; Nashville, Tenn., 193.9.
June 16—Nashville, Columbia, Tenn., 41.5; Sheffield, Ala., 119.7.
June 17—Sheffield, Corinth, Miss., 62.1; Memphis, Tenn., 161.7.
June 18—Memphis, Clarendon, Ark., 112.2; Little Rock, Ark., 207.7.

EQUALIZERS MAKE 5 MILLION INCREASE IN ASSESSMENTS

Corporation Property Values Are Boosted by the State Tax Board.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 14.—The State Board of Equalization, as forecasted by the Post-Dispatch, has increased the valuation of railroad and telephone property for the present year's taxes a little more than $5,000,000, which will bring the total valuation of public service corporation property to about $175,231,000.

The heaviest single increase falls upon the Bell Telephone Co., being $1,250,000. The St. Louis Terminal Railway Association's assessment is increased $695,000. Among the railroads, all the trunk lines are increased.

The Kansas City Southern increased $1600 a mile over last year's valuation. On the main line of the Missouri Pacific and Iron Mountain systems there is an increase of $200 a mile. An increase of $500 a mile was made on the Memphis division of the Frisco. The Santa Fe, the Burlington, the Wabash and all the main lines will have to stand for small increases.

The street railway, telegraph companies and bridge assessments of last year will remain the same, as neither classes of property seemed to the board to have gained in value.

Outside of the heavy increase on the Bell Telephone Co. the increases on other telephone lines, including the Home Telephone Co. of Kansas City, will be small, intended merely to include improvements since last year.

The exact valuation of each class of property cannot be given for several days, as a great deal of figuring will be necessary in order to extend the full valuation to each particular class of property.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

en until at last she has been forced out.

"The women have said the meanest things about me, and I decided to sell my horses and let them have their old show in Pittsburg," said Mrs. Limber, in tears, today. "I had the satisfaction of taking ribbons from some of the very rich ladies of the town, who thought their money should entitle them to everything. They got too mean for me, however. I expect to move to New York, where, I understand, a person can win with her horses without being abused. I expect to get a new string and enter the New York shows when I get there."

WATCHMEN FOR THE PEOPLE.

In emphasizing the issue of issues in this country—the Interests in politics and Privilege in government—Gifford Pinchot said:

"The motto in every primary in every election—should be this: No watchdogs of the 'Interests' need apply."

Very good. Turn out the watchdogs of the Interests, but let us do more than this; let us put in watchmen for the people. The Interests steal everything that is unguarded.

Constant additions to the sum of the evidence in the Illinois bribery scandals makes Senator Lorimer's silence still more impressive.

STILL SHOOTING IN THE AIR.

With "limited membership" and "closed meeting" conspicuous in its rules of procedure, the St. Louis City Plan Association will have obvious difficulties in achieving its purpose "to prepare the public mind by education to undertake big things." The St. Louis public is a reasoning public, and it is not accustomed to swallowing whole the ready-made conclusions any organization may come to behind barred doors, even if it is a very distinguished, unselfish and patriotic organization.

If the St. Louis City Plan Association desires to exist and dream there is no objection. It is patent, however, that any practicable scheme for the progress, development and beautification of St. Louis must come from municipal effort. Around a municipal commission any number of volunteer organizations may cluster; with a municipal commission everyone, organized or unorganized, may co-operate or collaborate with the hope of having the work count. It is through such commissions that other cities have attained and are attaining results; it is only through such a commission, officially ordained, that results can be attained here.

Until such a commission becomes a fact, St. Louis, as Mr. Gundlach said, is losing money every day. Until such a commission comes into existence and activity, every movement toward a general plan for a city beautiful is a shot in the air.

As Oklahoma views it, it is having a capital time.

CAMPAIGN FUND APPROPRIATION.

Senator Clay's question, Why should $250,000 be appropriated to investigate the tariff situation in a country already provided with a "best ever," brought the confession from Senator Aldrich that the real purpose is "to show the American people how groundless are the attacks that have been made on the bill."

"The investigation," continued Senator Aldrich, "will justify the votes given for that law. It will, in my opinion, convince the American people and bring defeat to its assailants."

The $250,000 for the use of the tariff commission stands, then by confession, as a contribution to the Republican campaign. Mr. Taft proposed it. Mr. Taft recommended it. Mr. Taft deplores extravagance and preaches economy.

Now that one is certain of being able to fly away again, there is no reason for not flying to Philadelphia.

PHILANTHROPIC EDUCATION.

One healthy brain may be as good as another. Perhaps it is, originally, but that is not the main question at Alton, Ill., or in the United States at present.

After even an inferior brain has been educated, trained and specialized for the purpose, its owner can take almost as much as he pleases of most other people's money from them, without earning it.

The facts show this. The record allows no one to doubt? But how it is done can be understood only by those whose brains have been educated and specialized. At times, after giving up our coats and also our cloaks, the rest of us might not be able to understand how it was done, if we were parted from our underwear by these experts.

The record shows that in many cases, such experts, if they become very successful, become philanthropists. When they give away part of other people's earnings, they are greatly admired.

At least they are until someone discovers how and where they got it. Alton, Ill., is making that claim now, when it is advertising "another philanthropist found out."

Thus it raises the main question of education in the United States. Is it not possible to educate and specialize philanthropy, so that all great philanthropists will show their love for their fellow man, by allowing him to keep his earnings?

GROSS TAX INEQUALITIES.

The members of the Board of Equalization say they can do nothing to avoid the injustice of distributing the assessments of railroad terminals over the main lines in the counties because the law commands it. Certainly, they must obey the law, but they can call attention to the injustice of the law and urge the Legislature to amend it.

The law was framed in the interest of the railroads and support was obtained for it through the plea that it would enable the counties to obtain some of the taxes paid by the railroads for costly city terminals. The railroads by means of the law reduce their taxes by substituting low county rates for high city rates on millions of dollars' worth of their city property. The assessment made on the railroads as a whole is distributed in proportion to main line mileage. For instance, the Missouri Pacific has millions of dollars' worth of terminals in St. Louis and its main line in the city is worth many times its main line value in the country. But for purposes of taxation St. Louis is credited with 7.03 miles of road and Cole County is credited with 24.40 miles. St. Louis gets taxes on $150,723.20 of Missouri Pacific property and Cole County gets taxes on $523,136. The absurdity of this mode of distribution is as manifest as its injustice. St. Louis loses a large amount of taxes which rightfully belongs to the city and the railroad retains a lot of money through low rates of taxation in the counties which it should pay into the public treasury.

The Board of Equalization is composed of the Governor, the State Auditor and Treasurer, the Attorney-General and the Secretary of State. No governor has recommended a change in the law, and no one of these officials occupying high positions of trust and honor have urged a change. They administer a grossly unjust law without protest.

Although the alleged mistake in the assessment of the Bell Telephone Co. last year will be ratified this year by a moderate increase of that corporation's assessment, the total increase in all public service corporations is not expected to exceed $5,000,000. The values claimed by the public utility companies in St. Louis for rate-making purposes compared with the assessed values fixed by the Board of Equalization, taken with the gross inequalities permitted in the assessments of city and country property, proves the failure of the present system of taxation. Under the system real reforms are blocked by political considerations and practical obstacles.

The situation emphasizes the necessity of a radical change of the tax system. The adoption of the amendment for the separation of the sources of State and local taxation will solve the problem. Taxes will then be levied in the local taxing districts according to each one's needs, and none will have to bear an unjust burden of State taxes.

Two Sugar Trust officials having been duly convicted, we may expect the trust itself to come up presently smiling with another 10,000 acres of choice Philippine sugar lands.

AN ANTI-GRAFT SOCIETY.

In Washington a speech by former Gov. Folk on graft was followed by the organization of an anti-graft association to be made national in scope. Who could refuse to ally himself with such a movement and hope to retain the respect of his neighbors?

Gifford Pinchot has been trying to oust graft through conservation. Hughes won fame by successfully assaulting it in another form. Roosevelt's distinction came from attacking rebates, which were graft, and similar devices, all susceptible of similar diagnosis.

Democrats talk bravely of revising the tariff, but they dread the task. There is as much protection sentiment among Democrats in the South as there is anti-protection sentiment among Republicans in the North. No party can be a unit on a thing which affects individual fortunes. Party loyalty yields to selfish interest. The tariff split the Republicans. Can the Democrats stand solid where the Republicans split? And yet the tariff is the parent graft. Who can decline adherence to a plan to take the graft out of the tariff?

Graft has become a potent and comprehensive word. It includes all forms of gain which repel conscience, and therefore fail to win the approval of the people. There are others who hate graft with as much fierceness as Folk. But there are no others who had the good fortune to uncover so much of it or force the punishment of so many grafters. So it is peculiarly his platform. Instead of Folk's candidacy being founded on an obsolete issue, as the Springfield Republican intimated, it is founded on a live issue. There is plenty of graft to be eliminated and a host of people are ready to fight under an anti-graft banner.

Taft is not to meet the Colonel in New York. He intends to play the first violin, even if he does it in a small orchestra, so he will attend the graduation exercises of a fresh water college in Ohio.

ANOTHER WONDERFUL FLIGHT.

One month ago, before Curtiss flew for the World's prize from Albany to New York, such a flight as that of Charles K. Hamilton to Philadelphia would alone set an American record for distance traveled express by aeroplane between two cities. It did set a record for the longest flight of that kind without stop.

While Hamilton did not on his return fulfill all the conditions set by the New York Times and the Philadelphia Ledger, he practically succeeded. He covered a greater distance than would have brought him within New York's limits and landed near the original northern terminus of the first railroad between the two great cities after having traversed in all more than 165 miles at an average speed little short of 50 miles an hour. Paulhan, in his London-Manchester flight, did but 32 miles more at a lower speed, with a night's rest breaking the journey. But the honor of the longest unbroken flight, 117 miles, still remains with Paulhan.

The railroads have been developing their speed for years, the tracks to Philadelphia are perfect, the grades trivial; yet express trains commonly take two hours for the run which Hamilton made in considerable less than two hours. No automobile could have followed him at that rate to Philadelphia without a protected right of way, a condition ordinarily impossible. Wilbur Wright puts the "economical speed" of an aeroplane at 50 miles an hour, but evidently men need not stop at that any more than they do on the ground. As a fast traveler, the air motor has already won its victory.

In developing this new means of locomotion for the too-crowded earth, newspapers have stimulated the three greatest intercity flights yet accomplished. Paulhan flew to Manchester for the London Mail, Curtiss from Albany for the World, Hamilton to Philadelphia for the Times and the Philadelphia Ledger. Public interest in aviation will be still further quickened by Monday's exhibition of an air jockey whose skill and daring are not surpassed on either continent.

Of course the proposed home for superannuated newspaper men will be overcrowded if all consigned there by reptile contemporaries arrive.

Wish one of those 11 aviators in Indianapolis would fly over here so we could see if they look like their pictures.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Enjoying the Fourth.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Why do people elect foolish governors? One of the governors declares that nervous persons should go to the woods on the Fourth. But what about the sick? In the struggle for existence many people have become nervous and dyspeptic. Some persons (and governors) are like porkers, or seem to be made of wood, and are sensitive to nothing. Another governor would give dangerous fireworks to parents or to adults. The fact is that many adults have as little sense as children. It is absurd to say that children cannot have plenty of enjoyment without the idiotic noises of our barbarous holiday. COMMON SENSE.

New Playground Suggested.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

As bearing on the question of play grounds for our children, which is a very important matter, I would like to suggest that the city owns a piece of ground on Broadway between Biddle and O'Fallon street, formerly occupied as a market place. This is used merely as a scrap heap and for billboard advertisements. If that ground, including the pavement, and perhaps a little more of the street, was fenced in, sodded and planted with trees and shrubs, and swings, bars, etc., put on it, it would make a splendid play ground for the children of that neighborhood. Thus, at a very trifling cost to the city, what is now an eyesore would be used to make the young folks happy and healthful, and also add a beauty spot to our downtown district.

LEONARD R. WOODS

Reliable Aeroplane Motors.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I read with interest the editorial which appeared in your paper on the 10th inst. on Mr. Gould's $15,000 prize offer. I beg to differ with your opinion in so far that instead of encouraging a duplication of the power plant, he should reward increased mechanical reliability.

Duplication of mechanism is an admission of weakness, and as you say, the increased weight is the bugbear of aviators. That man can fly has been determined beyond the shadow of a doubt, but the flights have been comparatively short and the personal risk great, because of the unreliability of the motor. The problem which now confronts the aeronautical motor designer is not to construct two sets of propelling apparatus, but to build an engine which will be reliable in any and all emergencies, combined with lightness of weight. Would it not be more logical, therefore, to reward the motor constructor, who in rigid tests could demonstrate a power producer of practically absolute mechanical dependability in addition to the essentials of light weight? After years of trial, engineers have not found it necessary in other means of navigation and transportation to provide auxiliary motors, so why should it be necessary in an aeroplane? CLARENCE E. GODLOVE.

Tribute We Pay to British.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is announced that last year British capitalists had invested in the United States $1,000,000,000. At 6 per cent this would mean that the people of this nation would have to pay an annual tribute of $60,000,000. It seems that the War of the Revolution was fought in vain, for we are paying far more tribute to England now than the patriots did before they rebelled at paying King George's unjust levy. A recent court decision denies the city the right to tax stock owned by foreigners in local corporations. Socialists want the earth, not for themselves, but for all.

BENTON CORWIN.

Republican City Ticket.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In a well-known public resort, a few days ago, a prominent South Side Republican worker boasted that a majority of the Republican City Central Committee had agreed on the Republican slate, that it was made up entirely, or almost entirely of Dutchmen—I presume he meant Americans of German descent—and that they were going to force it through. Aspiring politicians have often been killed by fool friends. The chances of a political party are just as likely to be destroyed by self-styled party workers whose words are not the result of good judgment. If it is the intention to bar everybody from the Republican city ticket who is not of German descent, there are several thousand Republican voters in the city who are not of German origin who would like to know it.

For a great many years the Germans have controlled about everything worth having at the City Hall when the Republicans were in power. No great kick has ever been made, but when a ward worker boasts that none but Germans are in favor with the majority of the City Committee it is about time somebody did some kicking. German-Americans, Irish-Americans and all kinds of Americans should be represented on the ticket, and as there are two or three old soldiers seeking places, I believe it would be a good idea to give one of them a place in the list.

Candidates should be selected because of their worth and merit, not because they or their parents happen to come from any particular country.

FAIR DEAL.

From the Chicago Tribune.

"Tommy," said the boss, "you quit smoking two or three months ago, didn't you?"

All Modern Improvements.

From Everybody's.

At a meeting of the lodge in a 'way-back village a member suggested that cuspidors be secured.

"I move, Mr. President," said an ever-ready member, "that the committee be empowered to employ two competent cuspidors to serve during the ensuing year."

PRESTO! CHANGE.

WHEN CHAMP CLARK SPEAKS.

From the Washington Times.

When Clark gets started on his speech, he wanders here, there and everywhere. After he stops to mop away the perspiration on his brow he sheds his handkerchief wherever he happens to be. He is certain to get back to it in 15 minutes. In the meantime he wanders from the Democratic side over to the majority side, dropping a handkerchief here, picking up one there. Frequently he takes off his spectacles, hands them to his secretary and continues his speech. The secretary wipes them off carefully and the next time Clark is in his vicinity he gives them back.

The secretary has another duty to perform. Clark has a habit of telling stories to illustrate his arguments, and in doing so he wanders away from what he had started out to say. Finally he brings himself up with a sharp turn, goes over to the secretary who is following the manuscript of the speech, gets his cue, and then takes up the line of his argument.

Members of the House like to hear Clark in a two-hour speech. That gives him plenty of time to indulge in his humorous personalities and although he handles his opponents without gloves, no one takes offense.

LINGERING DOUBTS.

From the Indianapolis Star.

Even yet some people fear that Wickersham will be found to have had his fingers crossed.

A REAL DISASTER.

From the Columbus Journal.

Our idea of a cataclysm is when a man expects to go to the ball game and his wife makes him go to a lawn fete.

RED-LETTER DAYS COMING.

From the Baltimore Sun.

Glenn H. Curtiss won last Sunday the prize of $10,000 offered by the New York World for the first successful flight from Albany to New York. Mr. Curtiss' record-breaking achievement has not only stimulated public interest in aviation, but it has also afforded aviators additional opportunities to compete for tempting money prizes. The New York World and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch offer $30,000 as a reward to the aviator who traverses the distance between New York and St. Louis on a flying machine.

But a journey in the air between points nearly 1000 miles apart is an undertaking the practicability of which is yet to be established. Under favorable conditions of wind and temperature and the mechanism which is equal to the strain of the long flight, there seems to be no insuperable obstacle in the way of the aviator who attempts a flight from New York to Chicago or St. Louis. It will be a red-letter day in the annals of aviation when the feat is successfully performed.

A VAIN REGRET.

From the Utica Herald-Dispatch.

A prize of $30,000 has been offered for the first successful aeroplane flight from New York to St. Louis. If the route were from Portland, Me., to St. Louis the people of Utica would get a sight of the airship passing the city along the overhead crossing.

VACATION MONEY.

Mr. Taft is no whit stronger than the rest of us. His vacation is approaching, and he has spent his vacation money.

It is a national habit, but Mr. Taft's case is an emphasis. He did not have to save the money out of his pay. Congress voted him $25,000, enough to have given the season at Beverly almost an extravagant tone.

But like the rest of us, Mr. Taft had to spend it, and we are assured that it is all gone.

He couldn't wait.

The principal St. Louis hospitals and asylums which enter into this work are the St. Louis Female Hospital, Bethesda Foundlings' Home, Rebekah Home, Mothers' and Babies' Home, St. Ann's Asylum, House for Convalescent Women, Rescue Home and the various orphan asylums. Addresses of all these are in City Directory, to be seen in any drug store.

C. B. Q.—Groom pays for ring, pays minister and for carriage which takes him and his best man to the church and his bride and himself from the house to the station. He also pays for bride's bouquet. Bride's parents pay for everything else. This means that if marriage is in a church, they pay for music for opening the church, the decorations, the organist's fee, etc. The bride orders and pays for all invitations, stamps, carriages for herself, her bridemaids and ushers. She buys bouquets for her attendants, pays all catering bills and, in fact, everything not mentioned under the liabilities of the groom.

MARY.—Dog's milk is practically three times as strong as cow's milk; a much larger quantity of the latter must be given to a puppy for it to derive sufficient nourishment to sustain life, and as a result the stomach is over distended. Indigestion follows and puppies do not thrive. To bring cow's milk up nearer the standard of dog's milk add to every three-fourths pint about three tablespoonfuls cream, two and one-fourth ounces casein and five ounces water. Mix the casein with the water, add the milk and stir thoroughly. Put in an enamel saucepan and bring slowly to a boil, and boil two minutes. When cold add the cream. Feed about one-third as much of this as you would of cow's milk.

MRS. S. C.—In many cultured homes there is always a plate in front of each one who is to be served. In others the plates are placed at the right of the host and distributed as he serves each one successively. Anything ornate in the way of arranging napkins, glasses, knives and forks, is not good or refined form. A napkin squarely folded and laying flat, or holding a roll is the correct thing. If the serving is to include several courses, place four forks at the left, oyster fork on the outside, then fork for fish and a large and a small ordinary fork. At the right of the napkin place the knives—a fish knife at the extreme right, a steelbladed knife for meat next, and a silverbladed knife inside, three in all. A soup spoon is laid squarely across the upper side of the place, just escaping the napkin. Dessert and ice cream spoons are brought in later, and so usually are salad forks and dessert forks. While many do, and always will, serve butter at dinner, it is not considered the correct thing. The reason is that at dinner one usually has a salad dressed with olive oil, which gives sufficient fatty matter.

K.—Texas is not in the list of states favorable to catarrh sufferers. Eat less meat, butter, cream, sugar and white flour, and the combinations thereof; and eat more fruit. Have it stewed quickly, boiling. Let saucepan remain over a moderate heat until sugar is dissolved. Never stew fruits in tin saucepan nor in an enamel-lined one which has places in the lining that have begun to flake off. Earthenware is best. Jellies and rich preserves should not be classed as fruits. Drink more water—pure spring or well water—or else distilled water. Three pints a day—an hour or more before or after eating—never with meals, unless a meal should consist entirely of dry foods. Breathe more air. Pure air—not air saturated with impure matter thrown off from your own or other people's lungs. Take more exercise, in a way that you enjoy it if possible. Have enough rest, but not too much, and enough sleep—two or three hours of it before midnight, with the windows open all night. These things and an active mental condition, that keeps the blood circulating freely, will insure pure blood—and pure blood is the only real cure for catarrh.

Love and Matrimony

By BETTY VINCENT.

GIRLS, there is just one good reason for marrying a man—marry him because you love him.

That is the best reason and the only one to which to pin your future happiness. Do not consider marrying anyone because he has money, or because you do not know anyone you like better. Liking is not a strong enough feeling on which to marry. If you wish to be happy you must marry a man because you love him so much you just simply HAVE to marry him, and just that one particular man and no one else.

My dears, we are none of us perfect and we all have our little faults. When you love one the little faults do not matter; but when you do not love him, the little irritating faults soon become unbearable.

Be sure your married life cannot run entirely smooth, no matter how much you are in love with your husband. So just fancy the almost constant quarrelling which will result from a wedded life entirely devoid of romantic affection.

Dear girls, you may be sure you would be much happier as old maids than as the pampered and petted wife of a man with whom you are not in love.

M. R. L. writes:

"I am employed as a stenographer in a downtown office. A young man who frequently comes to see my employer on business always stops to talk with me and is most courteous. He recently asked me if he might call upon me. As he seems to be a gentleman do you think I may give him permission to do so?"

In this particular case I think you might allow the young man to call, although it is not well as a rule to mix your business and social life.

F. M. writes:

"I am about to announce my engagement to a young lady. I would like to know if an engagement ring should be a one-stone diamond ring, or can it be any other kind? The young lady has a diamond ring."

The conventional engagement ring is a one-stone, or solitaire, diamond. However, it is perfectly proper to give the young lady any kind of a ring she wishes. Why not consult her?

Mistakes of Juries

By HENRY CLAY CALDWELL,

Former United States Circuit Judge, Presiding Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

IT is sometimes asserted that the juries are responsible for the miscarriage of justice which occasionally takes place in criminal cases.

As a rule the responsibility for such miscarriage will be found on the bench and not in the jury box. Observation teaches us, and the law reports prove, that ten guilty men escape through the errors and mistakes and technical quibbles of the courts for one who escapes through an error of the jury, writes Judge Henry Clay Caldwell in the Printing Trades Magazine.

One of England's best and ablest judges, Lord Chief Justice Denman, said:

"It is a grateful task to bear testimony to the excellent conduct of juries at the Old Bailey sessions. I don't remember a single conviction that appeared to be unjust. Some acquittals have startled me; but often very good reasons, which had not occurred to me at the trial, have been suggested afterwards and I have often thought that their mistakes might be traced to their feeling too much deference for certain vulgar scraps of judicial phraseology which have come to be considered as principles of law."

Who is responsible for these "vulgar scraps of judicial phraseology," that do sometimes mislead and frighten a jury into an erroneous verdict?

The superiority of the jury as judges of facts is as marked in civil as it is in criminal cases.

Greatest Detective Story of the Year

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by A. K. Rohlfs.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Elwood Ranelagh finds Adelaide Cumberland, his fiancee, dead in a country clubhouse. She has been murdered. He is accused of the crime, but refuses to defend himself, because he saw Carmel Cumberland, Adelaide's sister, leaving the clubhouse about the time of the murder. Sweetwater, a famous New York detective, is employed by the Prosecuting Attorney to solve the mystery. Ranelagh is released and Arthur Cumberland is formally accused of murdering his sister. Ranlagh still conceals the fact that he saw Carmel at the clubhouse. Carmel returns to consciousness, but her mind wanders. Her memory is defective and it is thought she will not be a competent witness at the murder trial. Unexpectedly she regains her faculties and resolves to save her brother from the gallows. On the witness stand she tells the startling story of how she seared her own face with a hot poker so that her beauty would not stand between her sister and happiness. She calls how Adelaide followed her to the clubhouse and took poison. Caleb Sweetwater, detective, after disappearing, returns and tells Ranelagh that he has a clew which may clear up the mystery.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The Arrow of Death.

IN my first glance around the courtroom the next morning, I sought first for Carmel and then for the detective Sweetwater. Neither was visible. But this was not true of Ella. She had come in on her father's arm, closely followed by the erect figure of her domineering mother. As I scrutinized this pair, bearing, I seemed to penetrate the mystery of her nature. Whatever humiliation she may have felt at the public revelation of her daughter's weakness, it had been absorbed by her love for that daughter, or had been forced, through the agency of her indomitable will, to become a minstrant to her pride which was unassailable. She had accepted the position exacted from her by the situation, and she looked for no loss of prestige, either on her daughter's or her own account. Such was the language of her eyes; and it was a language which should have assured Ella that she had a better friend in her mother than she had ever dreamed of.

The entrance of the defendant cut short my contemplation of any mere spectator. The change in him was so marked that I was conscious of it before I really saw him. Every eye had reflected it, and it was no surprise to me when I noted the relieved, almost cheerful aspect of his countenance as he took his place and met his counsel's greeting with a smile—the first, I believe, which had been seen on his face since his sister's death. That counsel I had already noted. He was cheerful also, but with a restrained cheerfulness. His task was not yet over, and the grimness of Mr. Fox, and the noncommittal aspect of the jurymen, proved that it was not to be made too easy for him.

The crier announced the opening of the court, and the defense proceeded by the calling of Ella Fulton to the witness stand.

I need not linger over her testimony. It was very short and contained but one surprise. She had stated under direct examination that she had waited and watched for Arthur's return that whole night, and was positive that he had not passed through their grounds again after that first time in the early evening. This was just what I had expected from her. But the prosecution remembered the snowfall and in her cross-examination on this point she acknowledged that it was very thick, much too thick for her to see her own gate distinctly; but added that this only made her surer of the fact she had stated; for, finding that she could not see, she had dressed herself for the storm and gone out into the driveway to watch there, and had so watched until the town clock struck three.

This did not help the prosecution. Sympathy could not fail to be with this young and tremulous girl, heroic in her love, if weak in other respects, and when, on her departure from the stand, she cast one deprecatory glance at the man for whom she had thus sacrificed her pride, and, meeting his eye fixed upon her with anything but ingratitude, flushed and faltered till she with difficulty found her way, the sentiments of the onlookers became so apparent that the judge's gavel was called into requisition before order could be restored and the next witness summoned to testify.

This witness was no less a person than Arthur himself. Recalled by his counsel, he was reminded of his former statement that he had left the clubhouse in a hurry because he heard his sister Adelaide's voice, and was now asked if hers was the only voice he had heard.

His answer revealed much of his mind.

"No, I heard Carmel's answering her."

This satisfying Mr. Moffat, he was passed over to Mr. Fox, and a short cross-examination ensued on this point.

"You heard both your sisters speaking?"

"Yes, sir."

"Any of their words, or only their voices?"

"I heard one word."

"What word?"

"The word, 'Elwood.'"

"In which voice?"

"In that of my sister Adelaide."

"And you fled?"

"Immediately."

"Leaving your two sisters alone in this cold and out-of-the-way house?"

"I did not think they were alone."

"Who did you think was with them?"

"I have already mentioned the name."

"Yet you left them?"

"Yes, I've already explained that. I was engaged in a mean act. I was ashamed to be caught at it by Adelaide. I preferred flight. I had no premonition of tragedy—any such tragedy as afterward occurred. I understood neither of my sisters and my thoughts were only for myself."

"Didn't you so much as try to account for their both being there?"

"Not then."

"Had you expected Adelaide to accompany your younger sister when you harnessed the horse for her?"

"No, sir."

"Had not this younger sister even enjoined secrecy upon you in asking you to harness the horse?"

"Yes, sir."

"Yet you heard the two together in this remote building without surprise?"

"No, I must have felt surprise, but I didn't stop to analyze my feelings. Afterward, I turned it over in my mind and tried to make something out of the whole thing. But that was when I was far out on the links."

A losing game thus far. This the District Attorney seemed to feel; but he was not an ungenerous man, though cursed (perhaps, I should say blessed, considering the position he held) by a tenacity which never let him lose his hold until the jury gave their verdict.

"You have a right to explain yourself fully," said he, after a momentary struggle in which his generosity triumphed over his pride. "When you did think of your sisters, what explanation did you give yourself of the facts we have just been considering?"

"I could not imagine the truth, so I just satisfied myself that Adelaide had discovered Carmel's intentions to ride into town and had insisted on accompanying her. They were having it out, I thought, in the presence of the man who had made all this trouble between them."

"And you left them to the task?"

"Yes, sir, but not without a struggle. I was minded several times to return. This I have testified to before."

"Did this struggle consume 40 minutes?"

"It must have and more, if I entered the hotel in Cuthbert Road at the hour they state."

Mr. Fox gave up the game, and I looked to be the next person called. But it was not a part of Mr. Moffat's plan to weaken the effect of Carmel's testimony by offering any weak corroboration of facts which nobody showed the least inclination to dispute. Satisfied with having given the jury an opportunity to contrast his client's present cheerfulness and manly aspect with the sullenness he had maintained while in doubt of Carmel's real connection with this crime, Mr. Moffat rested his case.

There was no testimony offered in rebuttal and the court took a recess.

When it reassembled I cast another anxious glance around. Still no Carmel, nor any signs of Sweetwater. I could understand her absence, but not his, and it was in a confusion of feeling which was fast getting the upper hand of me that I turned my attention to Mr. Moffat and the plea he was about to make for his youthful client.

I do not wish to obtrude myself too much into this trial of another man for the murder of my betrothed. But when, after a wait during which the prisoner had a chance to show his mettle under the concentrated gaze of an expectant crowd, the senior counsel for the defense slowly rose, and, lifting his ungainly length till his shoulders lost their stoop and his whole presence acquired a dignity which had been entirely absent from it up to this decisive moment, I felt a sudden slow and creeping chill seize and shake me, as I have heard people say they experienced when uttering the common expression, "Some one is walking over my grave."

It was not that he glanced my way, for this he did not do; yet I received a subtle message from him, by some telepathic means I could neither understand nor respond to—a message of warning, or, possibly of simple preparation for what his coming speech might convey.

It laid my spirits low for a moment; then they rose as those of a better man might rise at the scent of danger. If he could warn, he could also withhold. I would trust him, or I would, at least, trust my fate. And so, good-by to self. Arthur's life and Carmel's future peace were trembling in the balance. Surely these were worth the full attention of the man who loved the woman, who pitied the man.

At the next moment I heard these words, delivered in the slow and but slightly raised tones with which Mr. Moffat invariably began his address by an humane experience from the boy he was at that hour of surprise and selfish preoccupation.

"You who have heard the defendant tell how he could not remember the trend of his examinations, who is planning no attempt to explain the many silences and the often forbidding attitude of my young client by any theory save the obvious one—the natural desire of a brother to hide his only remaining sister's connection with a tragedy of whose details he was ignorant, and concerning which he had formed a theory derogatory to her position as a young and well-bred woman.

"I am, therefore, spared the task of pressing upon your consideration these very natural and, I may add, laudable gounds for my client's many hesitations and suppressions—which, under other circumstances, would militate so deeply against him in the eyes of an upright and impartial jury. Any man with a heart in his breast, and a sense of honor in his soul, can understand why the man—whatever his record, and however impervious he may have seemed in the days of his prosperity and the willfulness of his youth—should recoil from revelations which would attack the honor, if not the life, of a young and beautiful sister, sole remnant of a family eminent in station, and in all those moral and civic attributes which make for the honor of a town and lend distinction to its history.

"Fear for a loved one, even in one whom you will probably hear described as a dissipated man, of selfish tendencies and hitherto unbrotherly qualities, is a great motive worker. No sacrifice seems impossible which serves as a guard for one so situated and so threatened.

"Let us review his history. Let us disentangle, if we can, our knowledge of what occurred in the clubhouse, from his knowledge of it at the time he showed these unexpected traits of selfcontrol and brotherly anxiety, which you will yet hear so severely scored by a able opponent. His was a nature in which honorable instincts had forever battled with the secret predilections of youth for independence and free living. He rebelled at all monition; but this did not make him altogether insensible to the secret ties of kinship, or the claims upon his protection of two highly gifted sisters. Consciously or unconsciously, he kept watch upon the two; and when he saw that an extraneous influence was undermining their mutual confidence, he rebelled in his heart, whatever restraint he may have put upon his tongue and actions. Then came an evening, when, with heart already rasped by a personal humiliation, he saw a letter passed. You have heard the letter and listened to its answer; but he knew nothing beyond the fact—a fact which soon received a terrible significance from the events which so speedily followed."

Here Mr. Moffat recapitulated those events, but always from the standpoint of the defendant—a standpoint which necessarily brought before the jury the many excellent reasons which his client had for supposing this crime to have resulted solely from the conflicting interests represented by that furtively passed note, and the visit of two girls instead of one to The Whispering Pines. It was very convincing, especially his picture of Arthur's impulsive flight from the clubhouse at the first sound of his sisters' voices.

"The learned counsel for the people may call this unnatural," he cried. "He may say that no brother would leave the place under such circumstances, whether sober or not sober, alive to duty or dead to it—that curiosity would hold him there, if nothing else. But he forgets, if thus he thinks and thus would have you think, that the man who now confronts you from the bar is separated by an immense experience from the boy he was at that hour of surprise and selfish preoccupation.

"You who have heard the defendant tell how he could not remember if he carried up one or two bottles from the kitchen, can imagine the blank condition of this untutored mind at the moment when those voices fell upon his ear, calling him to responsibilities he had never before shouldered, and which he saw no way of shouldering now. In that first instant of inconsiderate escape, he was alarmed for himself—afraid of the discovery of the sneaking act of which he had just been guilty—not fearful for his sisters. You would have done differently; but you are all men disciplined to forget yourselves and think first of others, taught, in the school of life to face responsibility rather than shirk it. But discipline had not yet reached this unhappy boy—the slave, so far, of his unfortunate habits. It began its work later; yet not much later. Before he had half crossed the golf links, the sense of what he had done stopped him in middle course, and, reckless of the oncoming storm, he turned his back upon the place he was making for, only to switch around again, as weaving got the better of his curiosity, or of that deeper feeling to which my experienced opponent will, no doubt, touchingly allude when he comes to survey this situation with you.

"The storm, continuing, obliterated his steps as fast as the ever whitening spaces beneath received them; but if it had stopped then and there, leaving those wandering imprints to tell their story, what a tale we might have read of the first secret conflict in this awakening soul! I leave you to imagine this history, and pass to the bitter hour when, racked by a night of dissipation, he was aroused, indeed, to the magnitude of his fault and the awful consequences of his self-indulgence, by the news of his elder sister's violent death and the hardly less pitiful condition of the younger.

"The younger!" The pause he here made was more eloquent than any words. "Is it for me to laud her virtues, or to seek to impress upon you in this connection, the overwhelming nature of the events which in reality had laid her mind and body low? You have seen her; you have heard her; and the memory of the tale she has here told will never leave you, or lose its hold upon your sympathies or your admiration. If everything else connected with this case is forgotten, the recollection of that will remain. You, and I, and all who wait upon your verdict, will in due time pass from among the living, and leave small print behind us on the sands of time. But her act will not die, and to it I now offer the homage of silence, since that would best please her heroic soul, which broke the bonds of womanly reserve only to save from an unmerited charge a falsely arraigned brother."

The restraint and yet the fire with which Mr. Moffat uttered these simple words, lifted all hearts and surcharged the atmosphere with an emotion rarely awakened in a court of law. Not in my pulses alone was started the electric current of renewed life. The jury, to a man, glowed with enthusiasm, and from the audience rose one long and suppressed sigh of answering feeling, which was all the tribute he needed for his eloquence—or Carmel for her uncalculating, self-sacrificing deed. I could have called upon the mountains to cover me; but—God be praised—no one thought of me in that hour. Every throb, every thought was for her.

Girls' Names

By HENRY W. FISCHER.

FLORENCE.

THAT the many girls named Florence do not choose the original of that pretty name, "Flora," is a curious thing. The ancients worshiped Flora as the Goddess of Flowers and Spring, while the calendar has a St. Flora, "whose soul was caught up to heaven and remained there 22 days."

"Goddess" is the signification of Flora or Florence; its emblem, the rose geranium. Its sentiment is two-fold:

"Many are lovely, but you excel all," for Flora, "wealth" for Florence. Ladies, take your choice.

The French use "Flore," but not very frequently. In Scotland "Florie" is popular, in Ireland "Flory" (and learned persons assure us that this is the equivalent of the Gaelic "Finghin".)

In Spain "Florentine" is more often used than other forms, probably in honor of the martyred daughter of St. Leander, who was so called. The Spanish diminutive is "Florinda."

Irish farmers often make it a point to call one of their daughters, if they have several, "Flory," but the frequency of the name Florence among English girls of the higher class is often due to the fact that the bearer was born in the great Italian city.

An old English-French form of the name Flora was "Floramour" (i. e. "lovely Flora," or "Loved Flora"). A pretty diminutive, preferable to the more popular Flossie or Flo is Florette, "little Flower." In botany the numerous little flowers composing the head of the daisy, dandelion and thistle are designated "Floret." Floral, made of flowers, "Floreal," the eighth month of the French Republican calendar; florescence, i. e., bursting into flowers or blossoming, and numerous other nouns are derived from "Flora."

The beautiful State of Florida was so named on account of the richness and quantity of flowers found there by its godfather and discoverer, Ponce de Leon, who had sailed from France to the west in search of "the fountain of youth."

Royalty was never able to see the beauty of the name, even after Flora MacDonald, the beautiful Scotch girl, risked her head for one of its least worthy members, "Bonnie Prince Charles," the Pretender, whom she smuggled out of the country "in a printed cotton gown, a white apron, a large, coarse cloak and a linen cap."

Later, Flora MacDonald came to America, but went back to Scotland during the Revolutionary war and died on the Isle of Skye, her birthplace. Scotch ballads describe her as "beautiful Flora." She was a little woman of genteel appearance and uncommonly mild and well bred.

The present generation still recollects the noble Florence Nightingale, the famous Englishwoman, named after her birthplace, Florence, Italy. She acted as Angel of the Battlefield during the Crimean war, and that wounded soldiers nowadays are treated with becoming humanity and skill is largely due to her great work and influence.

Lady Florence Dixie started the fashion of riding astride among aristocratic Englishwomen and got herself disliked by Queen Victoria.

CORBETT SAYS JEFFRIES MUST DO MORE BOXING IF HE WANTS TO BE AT HIS BEST FOR THE MEETING WITH JACK JOHNSON CENTRAL GOSSIP

JEFF MUST DO MORE BOXING CORBETT SAYS

Big Fellow's Trainers Show Signs of Nervousness Over His Neglect of Sparring Work.

JEFFRIES' TRAINING CAMP, Rowardennan, Cal., June 14.

An hour and twenty-five minutes of bustling in the gymnasium completed Jeffries' work yesterday. The champion announced that he would probably box in the afternoon. Jim Corbett told Jeff that a double workout would do him good.

I happened to run into Corbett as he was wending his way toward Jeffries' cottage, Corbett stopping to say "Hello." There was a rumble and a shock at Jeff's gate. Looking up, we saw Jeff's auto whirling away, the heads of Jim and brother Jack with a couple of cane fishing poles sticking up.

"Well, if that ain't the limit," exclaimed Corbett, forgetting his grammar in his chagrin. "If that ain't the limit, and I thought he was going to box. Well, it's about right at that. He worked hard this morning."

He did work hard in the morning. There had been a feeling in Jeffries' camp that the only thing needed by the big fellow now is more boxing, plenty of boxing, all kinds of boxing.

Sam Berger voiced it when he had an argument with Jeffries about different kinds of muscles, and said that no matter how much running and general training a boxer might do, the only work that would do his fighting muscles any good was fighting itself. Corbett told Jeffries how he used to fight 25 rounds in private with his sparring partners while training for the Coney Island fight with Jeffries, and how he used to take on his partners in rotation, allowing no interval of rest between rounds for himself. All of this talk may have some influence on Jeffries. Or he may come to the conclusion that he needs boxing in any case.

Rough on Bob Armstrong.

He started with Bob Armstrong and slugged through three rough rounds. Jeff showed improvement in this session. Then he took on Sam Berger and Joe Choynski for three rounds each. While boxing with Berger and Choynski Jeff took no rests, but boxed continually. This made 18 minutes of fast work without a let-up, for the refreshed gladiators set a fresh pace every time they came up from the vacation.

Jim Corbett looked on, having sprained his thumb by punching Jeffries on the head, thought Jeff was doing better work than before.

"The fellows who saw me spar with Jeffries Sunday said a few things about Jeff's not trying to box as if he was fighting," said Corbett. "They wanted him to start swings down somewhere near the floor and keep throwing them at me. Jeff does not try stunts in practice. He boxes the way he fights. The punches Jeffries hurt most with are the little short ones, and he puts a good shove into the punch. They don't look like anything but they do the business. People saw the short ones and thought he was letting his sparring down easy. He was not. Of course he does not lash out as hard as he can or he would not have any staff left in a couple of days. He needs to brush up in his boxing from now on. By that I do not mean to say that he risks losing if he doesn't. I think Jeff can go out and whip Johnson on his condition and his strength and gameness alone. But there is too much 'hot air' floating around.

"People keep walking in and telling Jeff that he can outbox Johnson. Perhaps he can, but I don't know. I tell him that Johnson is a big clever fellow, the biggest good man he ever fought, and that he can't afford to let Johnson find out in the first round that he can outbox Jeffries.

Vanity Helps Johnson.

"Johnson has not much natural gameness, but he is conceited and that is just as good as long as it lasts. He thinks he can outbox any man in the world right now. Let him get the notion in his head in the first round that he can outbox Jeffries and hold him safe and he's going to be twice as dangerous as he will if he gets a few rib roasters and begins to thing about the way Jeffries can hit. So I want to induce Jeff to do a lot of boxing every day, just to make sure that he has everything down fine. Two weeks of this work will make all the difference in the world."

Besides the boxing in the afternoon, Jeff skipped the rope, tussled with the pulley weights, punched the bag and worked the wrist machine. He did enough indoor work for one day.

The outdoor ring was partially painted because the glare of the sunlight reflected from the snow-white canvas was hard for the eyes of the boxers.

The big fellow and his brother, Jack, caught about a hundred trout late in the afternoon. They brought them back to the icechest and camp. Jeff will have speckled beauties for breakfast. The icechest is guarded against practical jokers like Walter Kelly and Jim Corbett, who have been feasting on trout caught by the more energetic members of the staff, surreptitiously removed from the hotel refrigerator after dark.

Today Jeff will work indoors, doing a lot of boxing again. At least, that is his program.

Reformers to Try Again to Put Stop to the Big Fight

BY W. P. McLOUGHLIN,
Staff Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.

THE reform element here, notwithstanding the rebuffs it has received in its attempt to interfere with the Jeffries-Johnson contest, is getting ready to submit another protest. This time they are expected to tackle Attorney-General U. S. Webb of California, but it is almost certain that he will take no action whatever against the big fight.

"I have not had any requests for an appointment from any of the ministers yet," said Mr. Webb to a staff correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. "I have received no advices from the Governor. If he advises me to take any action I shall. If he advises me not to, I shall not."

Believing that he had earned a "vacation" by his great work of Saturday and Sunday, Jack Johnson yesterday closed up his training quarters and spent the day automobiling.

"Ah'm jes' goin' to try out that racing machine of mine," said Jack, as he jumped in to the car and put 'er on the high.

"It's a 90-horsepower car and is guaranteed to go 100 miles an hour," he said, "but up to date Ah've only been able to get 87 miles out of her. Ah'll take her out on the road to San Jose and Ah'll not come back till Ah get 100 miles out of her."

Johnson was accompanied by his wife, Sig Hart and his wife and Tom Flanagan, Johnson's manager. This party left in Johnson's other car.

Billy Delaney is expected to arrive at Johnson's camp today. He will occupy the position of chief trainer, according to Flanagan, but will have nothing to do with Johnson's business affairs.

KENNEY-POTTER GOLF MATCH IS TODAY'S FEATURE

W. Gilliam vs. S. G. Stickney
Jesse Carlton vs. G. E. Reynolds.

A. S. Martin vs I. W. Lincoln.
C. A. Piepho vs. R. McKittrick.
C. B. More vs. G. B. Allen.

Consolation Class.

H. M. Kauffman vs. T. W. Carter.
G. B. Fay vs. E. M. Davis.
George F. Paine vs. J. W. Bemis.
E. Limberg vs. E. S. Williams.
A. B. Lambert vs. C. L. Butts.
J. G. Brandt Jr. vs. O. A. Immenhausen.
A. Walt vs. H. W. Simpkins.
A. L. Johnson vs. A. T. Dorsey.

In the first round of match play in the city championship golf tournament now in progress at Normandie, 16 players had their championship hopes killed. These now form a consolation class, the first round of which will be played today.

The matches played on Monday, which helped to fill the ranks of the "consolation," did not develop anything sensational in the way of low medal scores or protracted matches. The contest between George Reynolds and T. W. Carter Jr. was the longest one of the day, going to 21 holes; but neither one of these men played what might be called championship golf. The hardest and best fought match of the day was the one between A. S. Martin of Algonquin and O. A. Immenhausen of Normandie, the former winning 2 up and 1 to play. It was a case of see-saw, the men alternating in being up and down the whole way around the course and neither player was ever more than 2 up on his opponent.

Their medal scores were: Martin 79 and Immenhausen 81. The latter player will certainly put up a real argument in the consolation class.

Hard Match for Kenney.

Chris Kenney was heard humming "Pick Up the Little Butts and Chuck 'Em in Your Bosom" when he came to the fifteenth green and had his companion for the afternoon, C. L. Butts, 5 down and 3 to play. But today Christian meets with Harry Potter in the second round of match play and this ought to prove one of the best matches of the whole tournament.

Carl Piepho stopped at Normandie long enough yesterday to put out A. L. Johnson of Glen Echo by the score of 6 up and 4 to play and today meets Ralph McKittrick.

The Country Club man beat Piepho two years ago in the city event at Glen Echo, but the latter has improved wonderfully in his play since then, and the knowing ones say that he now is as nearly on a par with McKittrick as any player in the field.

Short Putts

The match today between Walter Gilliam and Stuart Stickney ought to be one of the best, as each player has certain qualities which it is hard to beat.

The Western Golf Association is very anxious to have the St. Louis clubs take a much more active interest this year than they have previously in the Tom Morris Memorial tournament on Thursday, June 16.

It looks as though Carl Piepho, Chris Kenney and Arthur S. Martin are the ones who will change the golf situation in St. Louis this year if anybody does.

Guy Oliver made a 96 in the qualifying round, which put him in class B, and yesterday he was put out of that class by W. N. Davis. When asked what the trouble is, Guy only blushes.

WILLARD ISSUES TERMS FOR TOM MORRIS GOLF EVENT

Secretary Charles E. Willard of the Western Golf Association has issued the terms of the Tom Morris competition for the memorial trophy presented by Peter Dawson, which will be played Thursday. Conditions are very similar to those of last year, the competing clubs playing over their own courses against par.

The committee has eliminated the fractions which caused some trouble in the scoring last year. The distances are as follows: Up to 215 yards, inclusive, par is 3; from 216 to 400 yards inclusive par is 4; from 401 to 575 yards inclusive par is 5; from 576 and upwards par is 6.

THIS big fight on the coast, whereon the entire world will look with as much gusto as ever our old friend Caligula viewed a flesh-rending matinee in the Coliseum, will serve one good purpose not generally credited to it. It will contribute an instructive chapter on the possibilities of rebuilding the debilitated human frame.

Over one year ago James J. Jeffries, then a man mammoth of some 300 pounds, decided, after mature investigation, to find out if it were possible, at the age of 34, to throw off the effects of five years of idleness, or worse. When he began light training the bulging muscles of other days were gone and in their stead were smooth, fatty tissues of little power. After nearly six months of training, during which Jeffries laid aside 30 pounds of fat and took on strength, he decided that history was not veracious in saying that an athlete could not "come back" after five years. He accepted a fight for the championship of the world as the defender of the Caucasian race's prowess. He believed that it was possible to get into form as, fundamentally, none of his faculties had been impaired. He argued even that a rest from the pounding that might have been incidental had he remained in the ring, was really a good thing.

The Restored Jeffries.

TODAY, in support of his argument that regeneration is possible, Jeffries offers himself for inspection. Pictures show those of us who must observe at long range that Jeffries is today the perfect athlete, in appearance. Not an ounce of superfluous flesh is to be observed and his muscles are sharply defined as those of best-groomed physical culture show artist. Briefly, it is impossible for an athlete to appear more physically fit than does Jeffries.

That it is not merely appearance is shown in the fact that Jeffries boxes nine rounds with his partners almost every day, taking no rest between rounds and letting his opponents alternate each three rounds. Reports say he does not even puff after this form of endurance.

Jeff Shows What Can Be Done.

IT will remain for the fight itself, however, to tell if Jeffries is completely restored. If he wins it should be an inspiration to these old young men of the athletic world who have been content to accept the term "has-been" at ages like 26 and 28.

Win or lose, Jeff is the living exemplification of how a broken-down physique may be repaired. The lesson should do the world more than passing good, if observers will take the hint. Many a shattered system could be put back where it once was with attention and continued work.

The Case of Corbett.

THERE is a strong belief extant that a retired athlete can never come back. This exists because no fighter before—with one exception—ever devoted any considerable length or time to getting fit. After deteriorating for four or five years, they generally try to fit themselves with two months' work. Jeffries has taken 18 months.

The other fighter who attempted to do what Jeffries has done was James J. Corbett. On the quiet Corbett prepared for almost one and one-half years for Jeffries, after a life that—well, Corbett ran a thirst emporium on Broadway, New York, so you can guess the rest.

But what was the result in Corbett's case? He stepped into the ring such a man as James J. Jeffries, who had trained him for his fight with Fitz, never dreamed of. Corbett was a wonder, and for 23 rounds he made a monkey of the wonderful James J. Jeffries. In the twenty-third round the big bear of the Sierras broke through the wonderful defense of Gentleman Jim for just one blow—the one needed to end the fight with a knockout—and the only possible way in which Jeffries could have saved himself from being outpointed. The defeat prevented Corbett's wonderful return to life from attracting attention. Nevertheless, Corbett had completely restored himself.

Corbett and Jeffries' experiences tip it off that it is time that is required to restore battered physiques, just as well as physical exercise. Gradual restoration means building up the strength as well as taking off the flesh. And it appears that James J. Jeffries has learned well the lesson that Corbett first taught.

So, while they call this just a brutal prize fight, many of us can see in it a chapter from the book of nature, which all would do well to read.

Probably Bill Abstein, over there in the East [illegible] with a minor league team, is having a laugh all to himself. When he sees the line-up of the Pittsburg club he cannot help but believe that others beside himself can make mistakes.

Hans Wagner on first base and Tommy Leach at shortstop! What a bad first-sacker that Flynn must have been.

This is not the first experience of Hans on the first sack. Several years ago Wagner played this position, and for 29 games he led the National leaguers in fielding this position. But it seems a shame to take away a world-beating shortstop to make an acceptable first baseman.

White Allows Three Hits.

The K. A. C.'s of Kimmswick, Mo., composed mostly of St. Louis players, defeated the West Ends of St. Louis at Kimmswick Sunday, 10 to 0. The feature of the game was the battery work of White and Taylor of the winners, the former allowing only three hits. For games with the winners, address George H. Hall, 1515 New Bank of Commerce Building.

Three Central High Boys Named for All-Star Team

With the deciding of the interscholastic baseball supremacy Saturday and the completion of the schedule, it now becomes the task of selecting an "All-Star" team based on the performances of the players during the season. Heretofore, with more or less difficulty the task has been accomplished, but this season the members of that imaginary team can be selected with considerable ease through their efficiency, which has made them conspicuous in featuring the play of their respective teams.

The closeness of most of the games displayed their ability under fire.

Every team in the league, with the exception of Soldan, has a place on the team, Central having three of its stars in the lineup; Smith, two; Yeatman, Western, Manual and McKinley, each one.

It is true that the Central High team as a unit played better ball than any of its rivals for I. L. honors, but without the services of Rowan, Bradley and Kelley, the championship would have never gone to the Grand avenue school. It was Rowan's absence in one conflict that tied up the championship race and necessitated an extra game being played with Smith.

Rowan must be mentioned first of all as not only the best I. L. flinger, but one of the best all-round players in the organization. Performing in six games, he was returned winner as many times. He was most effective in pinches. His batting prowess was as commendable as his pitching ability. He finished a close second to Van Raalte of Yeatman for the batting honors.

In scoring runs and stealing bases, Rowan finished well up among the leaders, and outclassed Wingo of Smith, Beers of McKinley, Chilton of Western and Hoerr of Manual. Wingo was next in line of the honor. Chilton of Western showed well with the stick, but lacked in fielding efficiency. Beers of McKinley and Hoerr of Manual showed to excellent advantage at times, but poor support at times caused their downfall.

Jack Bradley, Rowan's battery mate through his consistency, is named as the best receiver in the league, in preference to Delano of Smith and Nece of McKinley. Delano and Nece put up a clever game behind the bat, but with the stick Bradley outshone his two rivals, with plenty to spare. All worked well on the defense, but in attack Jack was much the best. It might be added that the red and black receiver finished the season with the best fielding percentage over the rest of the players in the league, and his batting average was close to the .400 mark.

ALL-STAR BASEBALL TEAM.

Rowan, Central High, pitcher.

S. S. S. CURES SKIN DISEASES

Lying just beneath the outer covering or tissue-skin, is a sensitive membranous flesh in which are imbedded thousands of small blood vessels. It is through these tiny veins and arteries that nutriment is supplied from the blood to the different pores, glands and lymphatics. Thus the skin is kept healthy, and free from all eruption or disease, by pure blood. But when impurities and humors infect the circulation its nourishing qualities are diminished and instead of supplying the skin with healthful properties it constantly irritates and diseases the delicate fibres, pores and glands with sharp uratic matter. Then the skin tissues inflame, swell and ulcerate and some form of skin disease appears on the surface. Applying soothing lotions, salves, etc., to the outer eruptions does not purify the blood, and therefore the skin trouble can not be cured in this manner. S. S. S. cures all skin diseases by neutralizing the acids and removing the humors from the blood. It cools the acid-heated circulation builds it up to its normal strength and thickness, multiplies its rich, nutritious corpuscles, and adds to its purity in every way. Then the skin, instead of being irritated and inflamed by sour impurities is nourished, soothed and softened by this cooling, healthy stream of blood. S. S. S. Cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Poison Oak, boils, pimples, rashes etc. Book on Skin Diseases free to all who write.

ON THE BENCH.

SOMETIMES, however, the best laid and most carefully planned campaigns go sadly amiss and one of the instances of this was the miscarriage of a plan Chance once laid to beat St. Louis.

Sallee, "the string bean," a tall rangy pitcher, who is about nineteen hands high and left-handed, was pitching a strange game. Regardless of who was batting he pitched the same way to each man, a curve over the plate, another curve either on the inside or outside corner, two fast side-arm balls high and outside, and then a curve low and over the plate. His pitching, although monotonous, was effective, and for an odd reason.

Chance had a theory that Sallee lacked control, in spite of the fact that he was showing almost perfect control, so he counseled a waiting game and told his men to "take two," which means they were not to strike at either of the first two balls pitched. As a consequence Sallee had the batter "in the hole," all the time—that is, had the advantage, and when they finally were compelled to hit, they were forced to hit his curve, so they did not do much hitting.

By the middle of the game Chance realized Sallee was not going to be wild—and right there the game ceased to be baseball and became a guessing match. Chance, seeing Bresnahan's plan of pitching, expected him to change it, so he stuck to his original plan. Bresnahan, knowing Chance expected him to change, decided not to change, and waited for Chance to switch his plan of campaign. The game was almost over before the champions, made desperate, began hitting the first ball, and then Bresnahan changed on every batter, outguessing them all the time.

It was just like men matching heads and tails, each manager sticking to his own plan, Bresnahan turning heads every time and Chance tails, each expecting the other to change.

Philadelphia's Celebrated Steal.

EFFORTS have been made in the past to steal the signals by the most brazen trickery and unsportsmanlike methods. Perhaps the worst case of this kind ever revealed was that of the old Philadelphia team in the National League. Here was the greatest aggregation of batters ever assembled on one team, but, not satisfied with their natural batting ability, they wanted to know in advance what kind of a ball the pitcher was going to serve in order to increase their hitting. Morgan Murphy, one of the cleverest men at interpreting signals who ever played in a ball game, formulated the plan. Stationing himself with a confederate in the clubhouse in center field, he armed himself with a pair of powerful field glasses with which he watched the signals of the catchers as well as the signals of the managers from the bench. It was afterward learned that he frequently watched the pitcher, catcher and manager making up their signals before a game and frequently knew before play started every signal that was to be used.

At first the signals were given by the confederate, who stood in a clubhouse window and passed the signals by the positions of his arms against the sides of the window. One arm was for fast balls, the other for curves, and the code included many positions of the man. The opponents, knowing their signals were being "tipped off," grew suspicious and Murphy, learning of their suspicions and fearing detection, changed his plan and gave the signals by raising or lowering an awning on the clubhouse. If the awning was raised a few inches and held there, a fast ball was to be pitched and if it was raised and dropped quickly a curve had been signaled for. Not content with the success at home the club took Murphy on the road, and he worked from windows overlooking the park, often hiring rooms in order to carry on the unsportsmanlike practice.

It is remarkable how quickly a catcher suspects the opposing team is getting his signals or those that are being given from the bench. He judges chiefly from the unnatural actions of the batters. After even two men have batted the catcher begins to look in all directions to see who is "tipping off" the signs, and he immediately signals the bench what is going on. Then all eyes on the bench scan the field, fences and adjacent buildings to discover what scheme is being worked.

The Electric Buzzer.

MURPHY'S awning worked well, until it was discovered by sharp eyes on the bench, and then Murphy and his associates invented something entirely new in baseball. They put electric wires underground, connecting the clubhouse with the coacher's box at third base and buried in the ground a small wooden box containing a "buzzer." A certain noisy, obstreperous player was stationed at third base, with one foot directly over the box containing the "buzzer" and as the signal sounded, he could feel the tapping under his foot, whereupon he called a code word warning the batter what the pitcher was going to pitch or what the opposing manager had ordered from the bench.

Not a regular player on the Philadelphia team batted under 300 per cent while the "buzzer" was in operation, and several of their pitchers and catchers were among the leading batters of the National League. Opposing teams knew that, in some way, the Philadelphians were getting the signals, but how they could not discover until one day the Cincinnati club was playing on the Philadelphia grounds. Every man on the Cincinnati team was watching to see where the signals were coming from and they saw that one player stationed near third base, no matter how he moved, always kept one foot in the same position.

In the middle of the game, one of the Cincinnati team wandering apparently aimlessly toward third base, made a sudden rush, pushed the guilty Philadelphian out of the coachers' box and dug up the device which was winning games for Philadelphia. The discovery created a big sensation in baseball and aroused a vigorous protest against such unsportsmanlike methods. But instead of stopping, the Philadelphia club moved the buzzer to their bench, and continued using it until stopped by league action.

Not satisfied with having that much advantage on the home grounds, the man who planned the thing followed his team around the country, renting windows overlooking the grounds in each city and wig-wagging signals to the batters. He was caught at Brooklyn by some of the Brooklyn players and trounced, and after that the method of spying gradually was abandoned.

STOCK MARKET SHOWS STRENGTH AT THE CLOSING

NEW YORK, June 14, 12:30 p. m.—Trading, during the forenoon hours, was irregular. Nearly all the industrial stocks advanced while recessions were numerous in the rails. In only one instance was the variation from the opening as much as 1 point. This was in American Car and Foundry, which scored a gain of 1¼ points. Smelting and Amalgamated gained ¼ each, Anaconda and Consolidated Gas ½ each. Steel common lost ¼ point.

National Lead was at parity, and Colorado Fuel and North American had not opened at noon.

In the rails division Erie, Rock Island common and Southern Pacific advanced ¼ each, Louisville & Nashville, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, Pennsylvania and Reading ½ each. Atchison, Canadian Pacific, Northern Pacific and Wabash preferred declined ¼ each, Chesapeake & Ohio and New York Central ⅜ each, Baltimore & Ohio and Union Pacific ½ each, St. Paul ⅝ and Great Northern ⅞. Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Missouri Pacific were unchanged. Rock Island preferred and Wabash common had not opened at noon.

Call money was quoted at 2½ per cent.

Trading was very light, the total sales to noon aggregating only 165,000 shares.

Small fractional advances featured the opening of the stock market on Wall street today. In a majority of the list the changes from the closing were of an insignificant character, averaging about ¼ point, and in no instance amounting to as much as 1 point.

The early trading was marked by pronounced dullness, even the popular speculative issues being much slower than usual.

In the industrials Anaconda and Car and Foundry lost ¼ each. Amalgamated Copper, Consolidated Gas and Steel common gained ⅛ each, and Laclede Gas ¼. Smelting, Lead and Utah Copper were at parity, and North American, Colorado Fuel and Steel preferred were inactive.

In the railway list Erie advanced ⅛, B. & O. ⅛, Canadian Pacific and So. Pacific ¼ each, N. Y. Central and Reading ⅜ each, Atchison and St. Paul ½ each, C. & O. and Great Northern ¾ each, and Union Pacific ⅞ point.

B. R. T., L. & N., and Rock Island were unchanged. M. K. & T., Mo. Pacific, Rock Island pfd. and the Wabash stocks were inactive.

The tendency of prices in the first half hour's trading was towards higher levels, but price movements were not important.

Steel common, Reading, So. Pacific and Pennsylvania gained ½ each.

American securities in London were irregular, being ¼ higher to ½ lower.

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING ON WALL STREET

Union Pacific, St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred made opening gains of a point today; International Harvester 1⅝ and Reading and Great Northern preferred large fractions. These gains led a general advance in the market which, however, was slight and on a very meager volume of dealings.

Only a trivial demand for stocks prevailed but prices rose further with the inquiry mostly for the railroad stocks. Illinois Central and Delaware & Hudson rose 2; People's Gas, 1¾; Reading, Interborough-Metropolitan preferred and Westinghouse Electric, 1⅝, and Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Chesapeake & Ohio, Amalgamated Copper and Consolidated Gas, 1. Hocking Valley preferred rose 5. Prices receded a fraction before the hour expired.

The decline in the market obtained more headway despite the limited quality of offerings. Early advices were quite generally turned into losses. St. Paul and Utah Copper lost 1 and Virginia-Carolina Chemical 1½. St. Louis Southwestern preferred rose 1 and American Sugar preferred 2.

Offerings of stocks for sales were scanty and the trend of the price movement was upward. Dealings were very light. Satisfaction with the crop outlook was the only specific factor cited in the highly professional market. St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred advanced 2½ and General Electric, Distillers' Securities, Chicago & Alton and American Hide and Leather preferred 1. Minneapolis & St. Louis fell 2. At noon there was a reaction, led by Union Pacific, which fell back a point. Bonds were steady.

Prices continued to sag until some of the important stocks had fallen below yesterday's closing. Central Railroad of New Jersey advanced 25 points on one transaction.

The market closed firm. Prices moved sluggishly upwards again, but a general pause occurred above last night's closing level. The Chicago Great Western stocks rose 1¾ to 2.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

Colorado Fuel and Iron.

The speculation in this stock is down to small proportions with the evidence that considerable losses were taken by tired holders whose margins had been exhausted or who had finally determined that the possibilities ahead for the steel industry do not warrant expectations of a big year's busines. The West is not as bullish on this and other steel stocks as it was several months ago.

Amalgamated Copper.

The reduction of the Calumet & Hecla dividend, together with the Copper Producers' report showing a still further increase in copper metal accumulation, stopped covering of short sales by the bear party and the stock once more showed reactionary tendencies. Amalgamated still looks too high.

Consolidated Gas.

Those who bought this high speculative stock on expectations of something very favorable developing, had tempting profits before the recent break. Not all took advantage of the rise to get out. The stock is still too high for the 4 per cent dividend alone. There must be a "melon" or an increased dividend to justify it.

A MEMORABLE FALL.

NEW YORK, June 14.—The Financial World says: "The fall months of 1910 will prove to be memorable ones in the annals of finance. They will grow in importance the nearer we approach them, by reason of the events they conceal. The Supreme Court will then convene again, and the Standard Oil, the American Tobacco, and the Corporation Tax cases will come up again for reargument and with the rehearing of these cases will reappear all the apprehensions, because of the far-reaching importance of these decisions, which had beset the financial community.

"Whatever the final adjudication our high court arrives at on the vastly important problems which have emerged out of the evolution of our system of doing business on a vast scale as typified by our corporations, their influence will be felt for years to come. It is no wonder, then, that not only the banking fraternity, but also the entire business world will continue to speculate on what the fall months will bring forth, and will feel a keen sense of relief when these cases are finally out of the way."

ST. LOUIS MONEY MARKET.

Two of the leading banks in St. Louis report that the inquiry from the country for funds has slackened considerably in recent days and with a continuance of this condition, according to one of the officials, easier money rates for at least a temporary period are by no means an impossibility—the demand for loans from the city clients has been very much narrowed recently and with the absence of the usual business activity to provide a basis for credit it is confidently thought that conditions will be more favorable to borrowers. Rates were unchanged today at 5 to 6 per cent.

CHICAGO BUYS WHEAT ON UNFAVORABLE FOREIGN REPORT

CHICAGO, June 14.—In view of a foreign crop summary not favorable as heretofore, sellers of wheat were disposed to be decidedly conservative today, following the sharp decline yesterday. A decrease of 4,000,000 bushels in the European visible supply tended also to frighten the bears. Attention was turned in some degree likewise to the small stocks in store here.

Moreover, although rains were reported from the Canadian Northwest, the rest of the spring wheat belt had no relief in the way of moisture. In consequence, the market opened strong and ¼c to ⅝c higher. September started ⅜c to ⅝c up at 89c to 89¼c and continued for quite a while within that range.

Covering by local shorts put up the price of corn. Offerings were not large. Sept. opened a shade lower to ⅛@¼c higher at 57⅝c to 57⅞c, advanced to 58⅛c and reacted to 58c.

In the oats market pit professionals were playing for a rally. Sept. started unchanged to ⅛c up at 34¼c to 34⅜c and rose to 34⅝c.

A big decrease in the world's available supply further strengthened the market, but did not prevent a couple of quick dips, the result of liquidation. The close was firm, with Sept. 1c net higher at 89⅝c.

The corn market remained firm in sympathy with wheat. The close was at 58⅛c for Sept., a gain of ⅜@½c.

COTTON MARKET IRREGULAR ON UNCERTAIN TRADE ADVICES

NEW YORK, June 14.—The cotton market was steady, at an advance of 1@5 points in response to steady cables, and as a result of further covering.

Offerings increased on the bulge, owing to unfavorable trade advices from New England, and prices eased off to a net loss of about 1@5 points shortly after the opening, but the prospect for more rain in the belt checked anything like aggressive selling and subsequent fluctuations were irregular, with the market showing little feature.

Trading continued very quiet late in the forenoon, and prices to midday ruled about unchanged to 2 points higher. The Western belt forecast was for generally fair and warm weather, and some readers of the map predicted that the low area west of the belt would work northeastward instead of entering the cotton country.

Spot, quiet; middling uplands, 15.20c; do gulf, 15.45c.

Estimated receipts at the ports today, 4000 bales, against 5067 bales last week, and 6166 bales last wear. For the week, 30,000 bales, against 27,519 bales last week, and 25,785 bales last year.

Today's receipts at New Orleans, 1397 bales, against 1176 bales last year, and at Houston 668 bales, again 447 bales last year.

LIVERPOOL, June 14.—Closing: Cotton, spot in limited demand; prices 2 points higher; American middling, fair, 8.59c; good middling, 8.29c; middling, 8:15c; low middling, 8.05c; good ordinary, 7.79c; ordinary, 7.54c. The sales of the day were 5000 bales, of which 300 were for speculation and export, and included 4900 American. Receipts, 8000 bales, including 7800 American.

Futures opened and closed quiet and steady. June, 7.82c; June-July, 7.73c; July-Aug., 7.64c; Aug.-Sept., 7.33½c; Sept., 6.87c.; Oct.-Nov., 6.64½c; Nov.-Dec., 6.55c; Dec.-Jan., 6.51c; Jan.-Feb., 6.49½c; Feb.-March, 6.48½c; March-April, 6.48c; April-May, 6.47½c May-June, 6.47c.

The weekly weather report was bullish, but failed to stimulate business to any extent and the market remained quiet the early afternoon, with prices ruling about unchanged to 4 points higher.

HOGS—The receipts were liberal, being the largest of the year. The market opened quiet and prices were 5@10c lower, but improved later until the entire decline was regained. The top of the market was $9.50 and the bulk of the hogs sold at $9.30@9.40 or about the same as on Monday. Trading after the first two hours was good and the market closed with the hogs well cleaned up. On the early market quite a number of packers sold at $9.25@9.35. Pigs and lights were good sellers and brought the same prices as the heavier hogs if good quality, but there was little or no demand for the poorer grades and they were very slow sale. Pigs and lights that classed as medium or better all brought $9 or more.

BEARS ARE NOT AGGRESSIVE AND GRAIN IS FIRM

Decreased Stocks and Unfavorable Crop Summary Are Bullish Influences.

An unfavorable foreign crop summary, reports of dry weather in the spring wheat area, a heavy decrease in the European visible and a sharp rally in prices at Liverpool, after early weakness, caused the sellers in grain to abandon their position today.

The market received good support throughout the session and ranged well above the preceding final figures. Shorts were the best buyers. The outside demand continues light.

The situation in domestic grain now resolves itself into the question as to whether prices are not fast reaching an export basis.

The country's surplus, even figuring on a pronounced milling demand, will be a big one.

If the farmer will sell, the trade points out, domestic prices must ultimately adjust themselves to a level of equality with foreign markets, which, at present, are considerably below ours.

On the other hand, the prosperity of our farmers in the past few years has been such that he is in a position to hold a large percentage of his crop should he desire to.

If he should hold his supplies, foreign prices must ultimately advance to meet ours.

Another factor to be reckoned with is that in the past two years, the high cost of grain has forced the use of many substitutes. Now, with the lower prices, these may be largely abandoned, and the world's crop promises to be just about as large as a year ago.

Cables were lower in the early market, but later reflected a strong rally in prices. The selling was largely on the American weakness Monday.

The rally resulted from fewer Manatoba offerings, the heavy decrease in the European visible, unfavorable advices from Russia on spring wheat, rain damage in Roumania and France and dry weather in the Argentine.

Liverpool July wheat closed ¼d higher and Sept. ⅛d higher. Spot wheat unchanged to 1d lower. Antwerp closed unchanged. Berlin 1¼ higher.

The European wheat visible now aggregates 83,556,000 bu, a decrease for last week of 4,400,000 bu. Total a year ago was 64,700,000 bu, when there was an increase for the week of 300,000 bu.

Chicago's public stocks of wheat are 2,008,000 bu, a decrease for the week of 1,190,000 bu. Private stocks are 637,000 bu; increase, 26,000 bu. Total stocks, 2,645,000 bu; decrease for week, 1,164,000 bu; total a year ago was 3,248,000 bu.

Chicago's contract stocks of wheat are 1,972,470 bu, against 1,479,575 bu last week, a decrease of 428,131 bu.

Minneapolis cars of wheat were 102 last week, 130; last year, 151; two years ago, 206. Duluth cars were 47; last week, 40; last year, 19; two years ago, 74. Winnipeg cars were 158, against 123 last year.

Local receipts of wheat were 31,702 bu, of which 312 sacks, 29 cars local and 2 through. Last year, 10,054 bu, of which 24 sacks, 6 cars local and 4 through.

Bradstreet's visible showed wheat east of the Rockies decrease, 1,733,000 bu.; Canada, decrease, 2,193,000 bu.; United States and Canada, decrease, 3,966,000 bu.; Europe and afloat, decrease, 4,000,000 bu. Total wheat decrease, 7,966,000 bu. Corn increased 401,000 bu. Oats decreased 924,000 bu.

The Iowa crop report shows: Corn acreage, 102; condition, 79; last year, 94. Winter wheat acreage, 91; condition, 88; last year, 92. Spring wheat acreage, 99; condition, 96; last year, 94. Oats acreage, 100; condition, 94; last year, 90.

Kansas wired: "Finest prospects we ever had. Rooks and Rush counties have wheat that will go 30 bushels to the acre. At Alma, Ok., harvest in full swing. Biggest crop this section ever raised.

Two cars of Texas wheat arrived in St. Louis today, the first on the crop. It was offered at $1.01, although it was said to have cost 90c in Texas and $1.05 here. The trade took this as an indication that it is not wanted here.

Cash wheat was weak and lower. The demand is very poor and contract stocks are increasing instead of decreasing at this season. The carry over from yesterday amounted to 30 cars.

Clearances of wheat were 24,000 bushels; of flour, 8000 barrels; wheat and flour equal 60,000 bushels.

Corn and oats were influenced mostly by the strength in wheat. The demand came from the shorts.

Cables ⅛@¼c higher, and a rather unfavorable Iowa State report, were steadying influences in corn. Cash markets were slack.

Local receipts of corn were 90,445 bu. of wheat, 98 sacks 49 cars local and 33 through. Last year 29,900 bu, of which 80 sacks 22 cars local and five through.

Clearances of corn were 8000 bu.

Local receipts of oats were 80,000 bu, of which 40 cars local and 10 through. Last year, 25,600 bu, of which 13 cars local and three through.

Clearances of oats, none.

RAILROAD NEWS AND GOSSIP

Alton.

Alton common sold this week at 30, the lowest price since 1908. It sold above 70 last year. The coal strike in Illinois has hit the road hard; its traffic, at this season being largely in coal. The road barely earned its 4 per cent dividend last year and this year the net income will likely be under 4 per cent for the common. Uncertainty regarding the dividend is responsible for the drop in price.

Atchison.

The break in Atchison to near par brought into the market a large number of orders from bargain hunters, who took a good deal of the stock in fractional lots. The bears have been attacking this stock because of the pessimistic attitude of President Ripley. The break of over 20 points in Atchison seems to have discounted a great deal that is adverse.

Union Pacific.

If all the gossip about who has been selling Union Pacific is to be believed, the Morgan, Harriman, Frick and Armour holdings have been dumped overboard and the stock is headed straight to the 1907 price of 100. Bears who, of course, supplied this talk, covered heavily on the break. Local speculators, some of them big ones, have been hit by the slump, but no big investment holdings have come on the market, so far as can be learned.

S. M. C., 1100 South Broad st., Philadelphia, Pa. This office reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive informalities. F. L. DENNY, Colonel, Quartermaster.

200 LIVES LOST IN GERMAN FLOOD; TOWNS DESTROYED

50 Persons Drowned When Bridge Collapses — 87 Bodies Recovered.

By Associated Press.

COLOGNE, Germany, June 14.—It is estimated that 200 persons lost their lives in the flood that swept the valley of the River Ahr in the Eifel region.

Eighty-seven bodies had been recovered today. These were found along the river banks. A report received here says that 50 lives were lost at the village of Schuit when a bridge, which was crowded with persons watching the turbulent water, was carried away.

Throughout the Ahr Valley only one bridge is left standing.

The floods were caused by a heavy rain that had continued for several days, causing the River Ahr to break its bounds. Sunday night there was a cloudburst and the waters choked the valley, drowning every living creature in their path and causing immense monetary damage.

Two barracks in which Italian and Croatian laborers were housed were swept away and their occupants, who were in their beds, were drowned.

The railway was washed out and several villages were destroyed. Lightning which accompanied the rains did much damage. Yesterday the flood subsided.

There is much distress among the peasants of the valley who have survived, as most of them have lost their possessions.

Weekly Shoe Shipments.

The shoe shipments from St. Louis for the week ending June 4th were 22,070 cases. There were made in 49 factories, owned and operated by St. Louis shoe manufacturers 443,361 pairs of shoes. Reported by the Shoe & Leather Gazette.

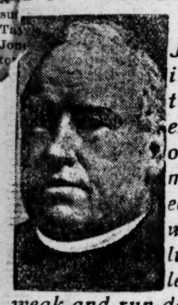

HARVESTER CO. FILES BRIEF

Answer to Ouster Charge Denies Violation of Anti-Trust Law.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 14.—Attorneys for the International Harvester Co. of America filed with Special Commissioner Theodore Brace today briefs in the ouster suit of the Attorney-General for alleged violation of the anti-trust laws.

The brief contends that inasmuch as the company handles 21 lines of business and does only the greater part of the business in two lines, mowers and binders, and then at reasonable prices, it does not violate the anti-trust laws.

"THE SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL" FINELY DONE AT GARRICK

New Theater Company Reveals Art-Value of Great Stock Achievement.

Drawn by Many Good Players, All Striving Properly for Play's Best Good.

WHEN I went to the Garrick Theater last night to see "The School for Scandal," it was with a deep misgiving in my mind.

"We shall now see," I said to myself, "what money cannot do when the doing must needs be in the most illusive and emotional of all the arts."

This was because I felt that the mere fact of a player knowing that he had $500,000,000 behind him and a $3,000,000 playhouse as the scene of his home endeavor could not make that player an artist unless the inspirational gift of God came before the money of man and was made fully effective by an individual consecration to the player's calling that would have been just as sincere without the $500,000,000 backing or the $3,000,000 endowed playhouse.

For it was the New Theater Company which I went to see, and thus far the most insistently exploited feature of this organization, thanks to humanity's worship of gold, has been the financial facts that the 30 founders of the New Theater are worth a total of $500,000,000 and that the New Theater of their building cost $3,000,000, toward which each of the 30 founders contributed $100,000.

How alluringly these figures jingle to the ear!

"Yet," thought I, paraphrasing those wiser far than I, "Paul may plant and Apollos may water, but it is God alone who brings the increase. And better a dish of herbs where Love is, in art as in all life, than a stalled ox and Hatred therewith."

Wherefore it came about that I went to the Garrick last night fearing that I should hear the chinking of those many millions very much more clearly than the voice of the dramatic muse.

But it was not so.

Happily, above the millionaires and the millions that have made the New Theater temporarily possible, there is in evidence one dominating mind that bids fair to make it permanently possible. The foundation has already been laid. It seems to possess, the only enduring fabric, that of earnest devotion to one's task and of a willingness to share the rewards of the task's best performance with one's fellows in the doing of the day's work.

Judged properly from the essential worthiness of every detail of the completed picture, St. Louis playgoers have never before seen "The School for Scandal" so competently presented as was the case last night. And never before have they seen so modest an achievement—it is only in the great playhouses of the Old World that playgoers have been enabled to contemplate this all-necessary factor in the stage's highest development—the utter subordination of the individual player to the general good of the play.

Miss Annie Russell last night portrayed the most wistful-mischievous and countrified-citified Lady Teazle that I have ever seen, new and daring in conception, yet strangely and convincingly true, rendering singularly vital, and with a certain appealing hedgerow fragrance, what has until now been mainly a figure of the gayest comedy make-believe in my imaginative eye. Yet Miss Russell was not one whit more the artist last night than was Mr. Cecil Yapp in the minor part of Snake, which he made a cackling and malice-faced figure of the coldest social venom.

Mr. Louis Calvert took the character of Sir Peter Teazle and put into it a certain mellowness, a lingering residue of good humor, which, seeming at first vastly to imperil its traditional appeal of choleric farce, ultimately and justly so endeared it to us all as to sound the very keynote of its success. Yet Mr. Calvert's Sir Peter was in no wise superior to the unimportant Trip of Mr. Oswald Yorke's playing, as keen and lightly touched a stage drawing as one could wish to see.

The Joseph Surface played by Mr. A. E. Anson, like the Lady Teazle of Miss Russell and the Sir Peter of Mr. Calvert, itself defied tradition, the divergence in this instance being toward an interpretation less hackneyed with the invariable broad-stroke touches of blood-iced hypocrisy and obviously unhuman falseness, the result being, for the first time in my recollection, a Joseph Surface so plausible as indeed to seem a saint of fine sentiment to those whom he befooled so long. Yet, newly truthful as it was, this Joseph Surface was of no purer fidelity to nature than the old Rowley played by Mr. Jacob Wendell Jr., a "little" part made big by loving artistry.

And so it went straight down the line—I mention these individual instances merely to emphasize the good and grateful moral of last night's performance as a whole, which is that it is the well-completed picture that counts, not the one big splash of mastery on an otherwise unfulfilled and inconspicuous canvas. The figure of the "star" was absent—a malevolent figure in the art of the stage. In its place were the beneficent figures of many good players, all playing to one good end—the best good of the play itself.

Among these players were Miss Rose Coghlan, an admirably bland Mrs. Candour, genial destroyer of reputations; Mr. Henry Kolker as a fairly buoyant and reckless Charles Surface; Miss Olive Wyndham, as a quietly delightful and convincing Maria; Miss Thais Lawton, as the most relentless gossip that ever smiled and tongue-frayed another woman of fashion down to her own level of ragged repute; the excellent Mr. E. M. Holland, as a particularly satisfying Sir Oliver Surface; Mr. Charles Balsar as Sir Harry Bumper; Mr. Henry Stanford as Careless; Mr. Pedro de Cordoba, as the smug and saturnine John, servant to Joseph Surface—also a number of others whom I may not mention without peril of tedium.

And the one biggest achievement of the night was what I shall call the "humanizing" of "The School for Scandal." I have never seen a less artificial playing of this play, for so many years classed as the most artificial of all the old comedies of manners. The New Theater Company vitalizes the work to an astounding degree.

The scenic production was finely pleasing without being obtrusively in evidence. The work of the orchestra was a joy—and it delighted me that last night's audience so properly testified to its appreciation of this truth.

The offering for this evening is "Strife," John Galsworthy's drama of the conflict between labor and capital.

"LA PETITE GOSSE" DRAGS ART TO POINT OF PERFERVID DRAMA

Columbia's New Topline Feature a Vivid Picture of Paris Underworld.

The rare art of personal adornment of Mlle. M. Corio almost lifts and redeems the dance of "La Petite Gosse," this week's Columbia top liner, from offensiveness. The scenes smell of the barrel-house and the act reeks of the tenderloin. It is thrilling in just so far as any drunken brawl, ending with a stabbing in the back, is thrilling. It is a pantomime in which drunken characters reel and stagger across the stage, assault and rob, dance and make merry, ending in a jealous murder. Through it all the pitiful figure of "La Petite Gosse" moves as a lost soul, devoid of hope, desire, all except the love, the natural product of the Paris underworld. It is the Apache dance carried to its extreme limitations.

Many good features are on the new bill, any one of which is worthy of topline honors. Howard, the Scotch ventriloquist, has one of the most entertaining acts of its kind seen this season; the Rossow Midgets do their acrobatic and boxing act; Ethyl Young, a little girl with a big masculine voice, has an entertaining singing act; Taylor Holmes gives pleasing impersonations; Savan and Warren do a clever acrobatic turn; Ward, Clare and Ward have a laughing farce, "The Twin Flats;" the Temple Quartet in new songs, and the kinodrome complete the bill.

PRESBYTERY WILL HEREAFTER HOLD ORTHODOX RULES

No More Doubters Will Be Admitted to the Ministry in New York.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 14.—The New York Presbytery, which was, by inference, warned if not censured at the recent meeting of the church's general assembly at Atlantic City for the installation of certain young clergymen whose orthodoxy was not clearly established, has taken steps to avoid a repetition of the experience.

To make sure that it will not receive any more candidates of the type whose answers to doctrinal questions got the local presbytery into its late difficulty, that body has affirmed the five statements of the general assembly and pledged itself hereafter to require all candidates for the ministry coming before it for examination to affirm them satisfactorily. The five points are:

1. The Holy Scriptures are free from error.
2. Christ was born of a virgin.
3. Christ suffered for our sins.
4. Christ rose from the dead with the same body.
5. Christ showed his power by miracles.

The local presbytery reports that it is now at its greatest prosperity, its members numbering 32,025, the high-water mark. There are 188 ministers in the presbytery, the largest number on record. The presbytery consists of the boroughs of Manhattan, Richmond and the Bronx.
